VETERANS' BILL CAUSES HOUSE G. O. P. CAUCUS

Leaders Call Members Into Night Parley on Measure.

HOOVER UTTERANCE MAKES VETO CERTAIN

President Considers Act "Bad Legislation" and "Untruthful."

SECRETARY NEWTON CONFERS AT CAPITOL

Doubt Is Expressed Party Has Votes to Sustain Chief Executive.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

House Republican leaders herded their members into caucus last night in an effort to stop the veterans' bill, which President Hoover denounced earlier in the day in unmeasured terms. Indications were that they would not be very successful.

Both House and Senate seemed determined not only to complete the passage of the bill, but to pass it quickly over the President's veto. That there will be this veto there is no doubt after the President's utterance yesterday.

Seldom if ever has he spoken so strongly, describing the measure as "bad legislation," as violating "the very integrity of governmental action," as "disgraceful and discriminatory," and as "untruthful and predicated upon falsehood."

Statement Is Strong.

The President, indeed, seemed to put into the statement his whole contempt for the factors that enter into such legislation and the reason they are successful. There was no pleading for congressional support or any entreaty that his veto when it comes be sustained. The statement was apparently written in realization that such efforts heretofore have been unavailing and that more good could be accomplished now by holding up those who voted for the bill before the country in shame.

The statement follows:

"In this problem we are dealing with sick and disabled veterans. Except for some marginal cases the Government has long since generously provided for the men whose disabilities arise from the war itself. These cases before us, except for a comparatively small number of marginal ones, are in reality men disabled from incidents of civil life since the war.

"The whole matter is one that must be approached in a high sense of justice and utmost sympathy. But this veterans' bill is just bad legislation. It is no more in the interests of the veterans than in the interests of the taxpayer. The financial burdens, the amount of which has again been reaffirmed by Gen. Hines (and they were increased by Senate amendments yesterday), do constitute a serious embarrassment to the Government and to the country, but there are other objections even more serious.

Points of Bill Criticized.

"This bill selects a particular group of 75,000 to 100,000 men, makes provision for them in the most wasteful and discriminatory way conceivable and entirely neglects the equal rights to help of over 200,000 more veterans who are likewise suffering from disabilities incurred in civil life since the war. Further, the very basis of the bill sets up an untruthful, and, according to all physicians, a physical impossible presumption and predicates its action upon this.

"For instance, a man who has served a few days in the Army in his

Vatican City Uneasy Over Pope's Illness

Camera study of Pope Pius XI, whose insistence upon receiving pilgrims from Spain and Italy is believed to have aggravated his illness, which has taken turn for worse.

Sunday's Rites Believed to Have Been Severe Strain on Pontiff.

Vatican City, June 24 (A.P.).—Pope Pius XI, who is 73 years old and has occupied the throne of St. Peter since February, 1922, today was reported ill with acute bladder trouble and threatened by the possible setting in of uremic poisoning.

The report threw Vatican City and Roman official and social circles into consternation this evening.

Officially, the first tendency was to discount the gravity of the illness because of the pontiff's vigorous appearance at services in St. Peter's on Sunday for the canonization of two saints. The Pope went through the four-hour ceremony with strong gestures and a firm, resonant voice.

Consultation with doctors and the members of the Pope's intimate suite later revealed the fact that he had been not a little troubled in recent weeks, and that Sunday's services,

SENATE GROUP SPURNS HOUSE CITY BILL PLAN

PROPOSITION LEAVES 1932 PROVISION OPEN

Bingham Measure Urging Increase in Federal Funds Passes.

BALLOT IS 54 TO 5; HELD STERN REBUKE

Robinson, of Arkansas, Raps Idea Body Is Bluffing on District Stand.

For the first time in six years, the House conferees on the District of Columbia appropriation bill offered to compromise with the Senate conferees late yesterday. Their plan, however, was rejected.

The proposition, which Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, head of the House conferees, made to Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, and the other Senate conferees, was this:

That the House provision for a $9,000,000 Federal contribution toward the expenses of the local government should be carried in the 1931 bill, and the Senate provision for a $12,000,000 contribution be thrown out.

1932 Figure Would Be Delayed.

That the Senate and House conferees should constitute an informal joint committee to meet here on November 15 next, make a thorough study of the fiscal relations problem, and decide what the Federal contribution should be in the 1932 bill.

That the District assessor and the Bureau of Efficiency should be directed to provide the joint committee with whatever information is desired in connection with the investigation.

The Senate confrees refused to accept the proposition unless the House conferees agreed to increase the Federal contribution from $9,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The senators and representatives will hold another conference on the bill either today or tomorrow.

Simmons Reveals Plan.

The House compromise plan was made public by Representative Simmons after he had returned to his side of the Capitol and had confered with Chairman Will Wood, chairman of the House appropriations committee.

Yesterday's conference between the Senate and the House, the first that had been held since the bill became caught in a deadlock, was held after the Senate had given its conferees an overwhelming vote of confidence.

By a vote of 54 to 5, the Senate adopted the Bingham resolution, a measure which declared that it was the sense of the Senate that $9,000,000 was not a sufficient Federal contribution toward the upkeep of the local government.

This tremendous vote, together with the debate, is declared to be an eloquent indication that the Senate is tired of being dictated to by the House where the District appropriation bill is concerned.

Roll Call on Resolution.

The five who voted against the resolution were as follows: Republicans—Blaine and Howell; Democrats—Black, George and Harris.

Those who voted for the bill were: Republicans—Allen, Bingham, Borah, Capper, Cutting, Dale, Deneen, Gillett, Glenn, Goldsborough, Hatfield, Hebert, Jones, La Follette, McCulloch, McMaster, Metcalf, Moses, Oddie, Patterson, Phipps, Pine, Reed, Shortridge, Steiwer, Sullivan, Thomas (Idaho), Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott and Watson. Total, 31.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead.

Democrats—Ashurst, Barkley, Brock, Broussard, Connally, Dill, Glass, Hayden, Kendrick, McKellar, Overman, Pittman, Robinson (Arkansas), Sheppard, Swanson, Thomas (Oklahoma), Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh (Massachusetts), Walsh (Montana) and Wheeler. Total 22.

Answer to Challenge.

Senator Bingham had introduced the resolution to answer a challenge made by Representative Crampton (Republican), of Michigan, who, in the House the day before, declared that there had never been a showdown on how the Senate really felt about the Federal contribution.

In the debate on the Bingham resolution, Minority Leader Robinson criticized a statement made in the House that the Senate was merely bluffing in its present stand on the District bill. The statement was at-

SOUTHERN CROSS COMMANDER

CAPT. CHARLES KINGSFORD-SMITH, and route of the Southern Cross over the Atlantic.

ROUND ROBIN URGES NAVAL PACT'S DELAY

24 Senators Urge President to Abandon Plan for Special Session.

CLOTURE HINT RESENTED

War against prompt ratification of the London Naval Treaty entered upon a new stage of aggressiveness yesterday when 24 senators sent to President Hoover by special messenger the round-robin petition they had signed, appealing to him to abandon his program for the special session of the Senate and to let the treaty wait until fall.

The petition reached the White House yesterday afternoon and apparently is due to elicit a response from President Hoover either in the form of a direct reply to the signers or in a public statement, for this is the most formidable notice to the White House so far of an organized and determined attempt to escape remaining in Washington to act on the treaty and to defer it until after the fall elections.

Coincidentally, it appeared, a rival round robin pledging its signers to remain here for the treaty session has made so little headway that it has been dropped, temporarily anyway.

While copies of the petitions against the special session are being kept secret, it was learned that among the signers are the following senators:

Hale (Republican), Maine; Johnson (Republican), California; Robinson (Republican), Indiana; Oddie (Republican), Nevada; Waterman (Republican), Colorado; Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota; Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota; Kendrick (Democrat), Wyoming; McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee; Moses (Republican), New Hampshire; Broussard (Democrat), Louisiana; Heflin (Democrat), Alabama; Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, and both New York senators, Wagner and Copeland.

Many, but not all, of these senators are against the treaty itself. With those of their colleagues who are indifferent to its fate now and who are eager to get away from Washington for the coming campaigns, they have joined hands in the combination to force the President to yield to their wishes.

The strategy behind the drive to forestall the treaty also included the plan to force the burden of protracted debate upon champions of the treaty, thus relieving the small group of outright foes the labor of keeping the debate going or filibustering. The opposition to action now is confident that if the debate on the treaty can be kept running for a week at the most more than half of the Senate will vote for a motion to adjourn sine die, thus thwarting ratification now.

Senate Rules Cited.

As Senate rules require that a treaty be considered article by article, to each of which amendments are in order, and concerning each of which explanations can be demanded, the opposition has the advantage of being able to drag out discussion to great

ALBANY WELCOMES BYRD WITH ACCLAIM

POLICE LINES BROKEN

Albany, N. Y., June 24 (A.P.).—Received by tumultuous thousands as wildly enthusiastic as any crowds yet to hail him, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd came to the State capital today to receive the Distinguished Service Medal of the State of New York and to renew his old friendship with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Coming from New York City in a Navy destroyer, with members of his South Pole expedition and his wife and mother, the admiral was landed on a shore black with admirers who broke through all police restraint to trample about the waiting automobiles in wild efforts to seize the explorers' hand.

With difficulty the procession crawled along the waterfront and turned into State street and up Capitol Hill. For a time all progress was blocked by the crowds that filled the broad steep street for a quarter mile from building line to building line. mounted troops slowly wedged a narrow channel through the cheering throng, however, and the official party crept at last to Capitol Park and the white steps where the governor awaited.

In brief talks Gov. Roosevelt and Admiral Byrd recalled their long friendship, dating from the time years ago when the young Navy officer used to drop into the office of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy to discuss his hopes of exploring the skies of the world's ends. Then the admiral introduced to the crowd, which filled the park and extended as far down State street as one could see, several

RADIO ANNOUNCES ARRIVAL OF LONE SHIP OFF CAPE RACE

Navy Flagship Wyoming Picks Up Message of Seafarers Rejecting Offer to Land at Harbor Grace and Declaring Intention to Make First Halt on American Field.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy Radio Station here last night received an intercepted message sent by Capt. Kingsford-Smith of the Southern Cross which said he was attempting to reach American territory before landing.

The message, which was radioed to the Harbor Grace, Newfoundland Airport, was picked up by the Wyoming, flagship of the Atlantic scouting fleet, and relayed here. The message said:

"Many thanks, but endeavoring to reach American territory before landing."

It was timed 9:26 p. m., Eastern standard time.

The Navy expressed the opinion that the Harbor Grace Airport had offered assistance to the crew if they decided to land there.

Reports One Hour Off Cape Race.

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—The Southern Cross radioed at 10:12 (E. S. T.) tonight that she expected to fly over Cape Race, Newfoundland, in about an hour. The message was picked up here by the Radiomarine Corporation.

The Southern Cross had reported in a radio message received tonight at 10:03 o'clock (E. S. T.) that it was 100 miles off Cape Race. The message, sent after the plane had been trying vainly to get its bearings from Cape Race, said: "About 100 miles off Cape Race and the big stiff doesn't answer."

"All Quiet Above Fog Banks," Is Radio.

In a radio message received here at 8:03 p. m. (E. S. T.) the Southern Cross had reported she was about 250 miles from Cape Race, Newfoundland.

The message, which was picked up by the Mackay Radio Corporation, gave the plane's position as latitude 48.12 north; longitude 45.5 west.

Observers here pointed out that the plane, in view of her lightened load, was little more than two hours flying time from Cape Race.

"All quiet above the fog banks," the message said, "2,500 feet up. Everything O. K."

Two hundred and fifty miles off Cape Race, seaward stretching southeastern tip of Newfoundland, Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith's swift Southern Cross at 8:03 p. m. (Eastern standard time), Tuesday, had all but completed her westward crossing of the Atlantic.

A dense fog enveloped the Australian ace and his three comrades, but cheery radios reported "all quiet above the fog banks, 2,500 feet up. Everything O. K. The wind was slight.

Her gasoline load lightened, the Southern Cross was capable of making within a little more than two hours her first landfall in the New World. Thence she will turn and head southwest for New York, more than 1,000 miles distant, where she is expected at about 10 a. m. (Eastern standard time), Wednesday. At Roosevelt Field, Long Island, preparations rapidly went forward for receiving her. A revolving beacon was kept flashing, and arrangements were made to handle a crowd of spectators anywhere up to 200,000.

The trimotored airplane Southern Cross, veteran of the spaces above the ocean waves, last night hummed steadily toward the North American continent, her good progress indicating that she might reach Roosevelt Field at New York by 10 o'clock (E. S. T.) this morning.

Numerous reports of the Southern Cross' progress were received and showed that the plane was shooting toward its goal as steadily as a railroad train.

Sighted by Pennland.

The New York Times Radio Station at 1:15 p. m. (E. S. T.) overheard the Southern Cross reporting its position as 50:30 north latitude 36 west longitude, or about 854 miles off Cape Race, Newfoundland, the first North American land expected to be touched.

In earlier reports, the steamship Pennland sighted the plane in latitude 50:57 north and longitude 20:32 west at 2:50 p. m. Greenwich meridian time (9:50 a. m. Eastern standard time).

At 10 a. m. (Eastern Standard time) the plane's radio notified the steamer Ingoma that the Southern Cross was 990 miles from Cape Race and making a speed of 100 miles an hour heading west and slightly south.

The steamship Minnequa talked to the plane at the same time and learned that it was flying blind at low altitude in a dense fog.

At that time the Southern Cross had completed about the first half of its over-water lap between Ireland and the Newfoundland coast.

Fog Slows Down Plane.

A later message, sent by the Southern Cross to England, said it had

PAY INCREASE BILL GOES TO PRESIDENT

Senate Adopts Conference Report on Raises for Police, Firemen.

HOOVER APPROVAL SEEN

The Senate adopted the conference report on the Capper-Zihlman bill raising the pay of local policemen and firemen yesterday, thus completing congressional action on that measure.

The bill now goes to President Hoover, who is expected to sign it without hesitancy.

The bill, which caused a Senate and House controversy that will not soon be forgotten, will provide nearly $600,000 in salary raises among the city's policemen and firemen.

Although the bill is not as liberal as citizens wanted it to be, it provides a boost for every member of the two forces, from chiefs down to lowest privates.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, and Fire Chief George Watson will receive a salary of $8,000 a year. The assistant superintendents of police will get $5,000; inspectors, $4,500; captains, $3,600; lieutenants, $3,050, and sergeants, $2,750. Corre-

RIVER-HARBOR BILL READY FOR HOOVER

Conferees' Action Accepted on Measure Involving $144,881,902.

170 PROJECTS PLANNED

(Associated Press.)

Final congressional action was completed yesterday on the largest and most comprehensive rivers and harbors bill ever formulated when the House and Senate approved the conference report on the Dempsey bill to authorize construction of more than 170 projects to cost $144,881,902.

Republican leaders believe President Hoover will sign the measure this week. It is in line with his recommendations to Congress for improvement of the Nation's harbors and waterways to provide economical transportation.

The measure, which was in process of formulation for three years, affects every region of the country. It commits the Government to a number of important projects affecting streams in the Mississippi Basin, and to improvement of the intercoastal waterways and harbors of important ports.

As originally passed by the House, it authorized construction to cost

Library Soon May Boast Of Rare Gutenberg Bible

Senate Passes $1,500,000 to Purchase Vollbehr Collection.

A Gutenberg Bible printed on vellum, one of three extant and 3,000 other volumes printed between the years 1450 and 1500 will be purchased for the Library of Congress, as the result of passage by the Senate yesterday of the Collins-Bingham bill.

This bill, which now goes to the White House for the President's signature, authorizes $1,500,000 for purchase of the famous Vollbehr collection of fifteenth century books, a collection that is said to be a rare bargain at that price.

The gem of the collection is, of course, the Gutenberg Bible. Of the other two existing copies, one is in the British Museum and the other is in Paris. When the copy that Dr.

down through fog about an hour prior to 4:20 p. m. (11:20 a. m. Eastern standard time), but then had ridden into good weather.

The Southern Cross, manned by Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith as commander, Capt. J. P. Saul as navigator, J. W. Stannage as radio operator and M. E. Van Dyk as assistant pilot, took off from Port Marnock, Irish Free State, at 4:27 o'clock yesterday morning (10:27 p. m. Monday Eastern standard time) and the plane's wireless reports indicated that at no place was the going particularly difficult.

The start was particularly good, the fliers' only complaint being of the intense cold at the 2,000-foot altitude. The speed indicator stayed around 100 miles an hour most of the time and increased slightly as the load of fuel was steadily lightened.

Meanwhile preparations were made in the United States for receiving the fliers. A Curtiss-Robin refueling plane provided by an oil company went to Portland, Me., planning to refuel the Southern Cross at Portland or somewhere on the coast if the transatlantic voyager needs gasoline to continue the flight to New York. The plane was equipped to transfer 125 gallons of fuel.

STEEL KINGS GATHER FOR MERGER BATTLE

TENSE FEELING EVIDENT

Youngstown, Ohio, June 24 (A.P.)—Much was at stake tonight as colorful financial figures, a brilliant array of legal talent and an abundance of observers crowded hotels here, eager for the opening of the hearing tomorrow on the legality of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. merger with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

A feeling of tensity permeated the little groups that gathered into hotel rooms and lobbies—a feeling that an event was about to be witnessed which would have profound economic significance.

On the hearing depends the destiny of a billion dollars represented by the merging companies. It will affect considerably the destinies of Cyrus S. Eaton, of Cleveland, the legendary man of millions, and a power in the steel, rubber, and public utility industries. Mr. Eaton has visioned an extensive empire of steel in northern Ohio.

The outcome of the suit, according to financial observers, will have an important bearing upon the struggle of interests in the Middle West to diminish the influence of Wall Street in this region. It has been said by Mr. Eaton, chief merger opponent, that if the merger fails Midwestern financiers will gain greatly.

The hearing, which was brought on petition of Myron C. Wick, jr., of Youngstown, and the International Share Corporation of Cleveland, to have the merger vote set aside on the grounds that certain stock voted was not owned by the voters, will be presided over by Judge David G. Jenkins, who already has made important rulings in the case.

Heading the attorneys for merger proponents are Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, former Secretary of War and noted corporation counsel; Frederick N. Wood, of New York, Bethlehem's chief counsel, and Leroy Manchester, of Youngstown, chief counsel for Sheet & Tube. Luther Day and Harry Crawford, prominent Cleveland attorneys, will plead for the merger opponents.

Volumes of testimony have been prepared for the hearing. The books and records of Bethlehem revealing the steps of the merger up to the vote have been under the scrutiny of accountants during the last few days—ever since the opponents won an important decision from Judge Jenkins permitting the examination.

OCEAN FLIERS VIEW CHEERLESS SUNSET

Chicken and Coffee Royal in Cozy Cabin, However, Lighten Hearts.

HAZE ENVELOPS MOTOR

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—The naval communications system received a message tonight from Capt. Kingsford-Smith aboard the Southern Cross describing how the transatlantic plane approached the Grand Banks of Newfoundland as the sun set.

"Rather a cheerless sundown," the message said. "We are just off the fringe of the Grand Banks and it is overcast and bleak with fog almost to the water. However, we are not cheerless ourselves. All O. K."

A little later a cheerful word picture of supper aboard the Southern Cross was received by the Radiomarine Corporation. The message, which gave no position, said:

"All going well. Quite dark inside cabin now, but cheerful glow of radio tubes, the cherry-red plates, make cabin look cozy. To complete the picture I think I will wrap myself around another sandwich.

"Well, that is a pretty decent supper, I think, for this ship. Snappy chicken sandwich and a cup of coffee royal. The coffee was not so good, but the royal is Jameson's Irish, seven years old.

"Not quite dark yet, but we are sailing high—4,000 feet."

This message was unsigned.

Still another message, received by the Radiomarine Corporation, gave further description of the scene as night fell.

"Getting foggy now," it said. "The starboard motor is shrouded in blue haze and each exhaust on the port side has a reddish pink line, showing feathery from it. Very uncanny.

"The letter on the starboard wing is embossed in gold as the last faint radiance from the Western sky touches it."

FORGERY IS CHARGED IN BROKERS' FAILURE

Head of Firm in $2,000,000 Bankruptcy Asserts Signature False.

SCHOOL GAINED IN DEAL

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Charges of forgery and sharp practice were made today at a bankruptcy hearing on the affairs of the Wall street brokerage concern of Woody & Co., which failed for $2,000,000 last week.

Charles L. Woody, jr., titular head of the firm, said signatures purporting to be his on documents presented by his brother-in-law and brokerage partner, Harold Russell Ryder, were forgeries.

The documents were given to Frank Bailey, head of a financial house, as security for stock he had bought from the firm but never received.

Ryder, who has been pictured as a Broadway play boy, is under $10,000 bail pending trial of an indictment charging him with grand larceny in the conduct of the firm's affairs.

Mr. Bailey identified the documents, one of which transferred Ryder's purported share in a stock exchange membership, as having been given to him by Ryder. They were signed also by Ryder's wife, who is Woody's sister.

Mr. Bailey said that he stood to lose several hundred thousand dollars in the failure, and had known for some time that affairs of the company were not as they should have been. He said he had confidence in Ryder, however, and had not been so severe with him as conditions apparently warranted. He said he refused an offer of Ryder's wife to turn over to him her jewelry as security for stock Ryder had failed to deliver.

He also revealed that $300,000 which Ryder had contributed to Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., of which Mr. Bailey was treasurer, was the fruit of a speculative account he had left in Ryder's hands. He said he had ordered Ryder to turn over to the college the profits from the account.

Ryder appeared at the hearing this afternoon but was not questioned. He was ordered to report again Thursday morning.

RIGHT TIMING HELD PUBLIC WORKS NEED

Hoover's Committee States Unemployment Aid Is Balked Otherwise.

LONG STUDY NECESSARY

(Associated Press.)

Studies of attempts to relieve unemployment by increasing expenditures for public works have brought President Hoover's committee on economic changes to the conclusion that effective application of the idea requires a great amount of planning and careful timing.

The group includes in its membership Owen D. Young, President Green of the American Federation of Labor, Daniel Willard, of the Baltimore & Ohio, and other leaders.

A summary of studies undertaken by its agents, issued yesterday said the "skillful timing in the use of comparatively small margin of public construction" is the most important end to achieve. It suggested that it will be necessary to develop ways and means of anticipating the onset of a cycle of depression.

"Prompt action, before conditions became serious, can be assured only as there is developed a practical method of gauging the economic situation, so that unfavorable trends which threaten adversely to influence the economic balance that may be anticipated and compensating factors influenced earlier than would be the case if natural forces were left to their own time and way," the report said. "As an unplanned form of emergency relief for unemployment, public construction has long been tried and found wanting."

In addition, some degree of play to the cycle of economic conditions, which varies from great activity to stagnation, should be allowed, it was suggested. Better methods of obtaining State, Federal and municipal cooperation for the purpose of releasing public work were deemed necessary.

The committee announced that the further progress of its inquiry will deal with the shifting of price relationships noted in recent months.

CATALAN LANGUAGE OF ANCIENT ORIGIN

Expresses Desire of People for Independence From Spanish Rule.

HARD TO STAMP OUT

Barcelona, Spain, June 24 (A.P.).—The Catalan language is being increasingly used here, but the movement for establishment of Catalonia as an independent country seems less intense.

At least those who favor separation from Spain have not recently attempted the violences that they used just before Gen. Primo de Rivera established his dictatorship.

Many Catalonians seem to desire some form of political autonomy for Catalonia, but conservative elements are disposed to balk at suggestions of a complete break with Madrid.

The Catalonians, however, are proud of being different from other peoples of Spain, and they do insist upon preserving their intellectual and spiritual independence. The idea of political independence smoulders and may some time flame.

Most of them are bilingual, speaking from childhood both Catalan and Spanish. Many are trilingual, for the influence of nearby France is notable.

In the rural districts only Catalan is ordinarily spoken. Six Barcelona daily newspapers and numerous reviews are printed in Catalan. There are several large publishing houses issuing books only in Catalan, and theaters where plays are produced in no other language.

Through the centuries various conquerors have tried to stamp out the Catalan tongue, but it is used more today than ever. Philologists are not agreed about its age or origin, but the Catalonians themselves credit it with antiquity.

Byrd Makes Surprise Visit at Poughkeepsie

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 24 (A.P.).—An unexpected visit from Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd featured the morning workouts of crews putting the finishing touches to preparations for the intercollegiate regatta Thursday. The famous explorer was on the destroyer Bainbridge, which steamed slowly up the course, passing crews on either side. He stopped at the Navy's boathouse to wish the oarsmen success.

The course was inspected and crew quarters visited by Maxwell Stevenson, chairman of the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, and Julian W. Curtiss, the regatta referee.

CAPITOL HILL HEARS SHIRES' PHILOSOPHY

"Congressmen, Ball Players Alike," Great One Says at Texas Luncheon.

COMPARES THEIR AIMS

Art Shires, ball player and pugilist, qualified as an orator yesterday, and also as a philosopher.

The new first baseman of the Nationals, who is a resident of Texas, was a guest at a luncheon given at the Capitol by the members of the Texas delegation in Congress. Three other members of the team also were there—Fred Marberry, Lloyd Brown and Samuel West, all Texans.

In his speech, Arthur the Great said:

"I'm not a speaker, but I can tell you some things whether you like them or not. When we were on our way up here to the Capitol, some of the boys said they were scared about meeting a lot of congressmen, but I said to 'em:

"'Don't get scared. These congressmen are all just a lot of plowhands like us, and used to have a ragged seat in their breeches.'

"The way I look at it, ball players are just about the same as congressmen. The only difference is that we get the Bronx cheer in the park and you fellows get 'em around the cracker barrel in the country store.

"All you fellows care about is election time and we care about signing a new contract in the spring. I figured out a long time ago that you couldn't satisfy everybody, so I decided the main thing to do was to satisfy Art Shires, and that is what I am trying to do. As long as the public pays its $1.25 and comes to see the game, I'm satisfied."

Representative Sumners, from whose district Shires hails, attributed the ball player's success to the free seeds he had sent him years ago. Shires, he said, got tired of cultivating the seeds, and sought a refuge on the ball diamond.

Senator Connally said that swinging a hoe had given Shires the muscles to clout a baseball.

U. S. May Restate Monroe Doctrine

Stimson Will Investigate Uncompleted Move of Kellogg.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson said yesterday he would act to "terminate uncertainty" concerning an uncompleted move by former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg to restate the Monroe Doctrine in simplified form, unclouded by corollaries.

During the closing days of the last administration, Mr. Kellogg sent a memorandum designed to clarify the doctrine to diplomatic posts in a score of Latin-American countries, with instructions that they be held until released from Washington.

Before this release came, Henry L. Stimson had succeeded Mr. Kellogg as Secretary of State and distribution was never made. The memorandum was based upon a study of the Monroe Doctrine made by J. Reuben Clark, former Undersecretary of State, who is now at the United States Embassy in Mexico.

Mr. Stimson said he had not had an opportunity to study it, but that he would investigate.

DRY LAW PROVISION SCORED BY DOCTORS

House of Delegates Attacks War Veterans' Bill at Detroit Session.

PRESCRIPTION CURB HIT

Detroit, Mich., June 24 (A.P.).—Prohibition, the liberalized World War veterans' bill and the defunct Sheppard-Towner maternity act formed the basis for discussions and addresses at today's session of the eighty-first convention of the American Medical Association.

The house of delegates of the association placed itself on record as opposing the veterans and the Sheppard-Towner bills, while Dr. William Gerry Morgan, presidfent-elect of the association, told the body that it was its duty to urge certain changes in the Volstead act.

President Hoover was upheld in his opposition to the veterans' bill by a resolution passed by the house of delegates. The resolution states that the bill was "without basis in the science and art of medicine." The resolution said that that portion of the bill which enlarges hospital facilities at the command of the Veterans' Bureau, was "unsound and socialistic in character."

Urged Dry Law Change.

Dr. Morgan in his address said: "It is our bounden duty to urge strenuously upon Congress that there be a radical change in those parts of the Volstead act which forbid the practitioner from following his trained judgement in his ministry to the patient."

"Such a prohibition, in my judgement," said Dr. Morgan, "is a reproach to our profession."

Dr. Morgan made it plain that he was taking no sides in the prohibition question, nor was the American Medical Association, he added. He pointed out that he was restricting his plea to the specific provisions of the Volstead act covering prescriptions. He said that his views were shared by a majority of the country's medical men.

Asks Imperative Action.

Dr. Morgan cited three phases of the Volstead act to which he objected. They were a clause forbidding a physician prescribing more than a pint of spiritous liquor in any ten days; the supplementary act forbidding the physician from prescribing in any like period any vinous liquor containing more than 24 per cent alcohol; and the requirement that upon the stub of the prescription shall be written the disease of the patient.

Such provisions in the Volstead act, he said, marked departures from the solemn declaration to the States that the prohibition amnedment would not authorize any interference with the use of liquor in the practice of medicine.

Dr. Morgan asked imperative action rather than academic discussion, and cited a Supreme Court decision in which he said the views of the association on the prohibition question as expressed in a resolution in 1917 had been misinterpreted. That resolution, which stated that "the use of alcohol as a therapeutic agent should be discouraged," was followed by others strongly protesting against any congressional limitation of physicians' prescriptions, Dr. Morgan said.

Business Men Set For Picnic July 24

Chesapeake Beach Will Be Scene of Georgia Avenue Group's Outing.

Plans for the outing of the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association on July 24 at Chesapeake Beach, Md., were made last night at the regular meeting of the association at its headquarters, 3933 Georgia avenue. It was reported that the District Commissioners and the police captains of the Tenth and Thirteenth Precincts had been invited to attend. Those participating in the festivities will leave the District line on a special car of the Chesapeake Beach Railroad.

The group empowered a committee to solicit signatures to a petition calling for a branch postoffice to be located in that section, preferably on Georgia avenue. A new member, Smith & Berger's gas station, at Columbia road and Georgia avenue, was elected to membership in the association.

Committees appointed to make arrangements for the outing and ttheir chairmen are: Outing, E. Minous; ticket, Milton E. Vollmer; reception, Mason Welch; prizes, C. W. Sigworth; athletic, Allen Haight; publicity, E. W. Sanders; tug of war, H. S. Huntt; baseball, Joseph Schaeffeer.

Woman, Three Children Die From Mother's Dose

Alhambra, Calif., June 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edward Proctor, 40, and her three children are dead today from poison administered, police believe, by the woman. Autopsies have been ordered to determine the poison used.

Adeline, 5, and Eddie, 3, died yesterday before a physician called by the father could arrive. Mrs. Proctor died last night and James, 6, today. Proctor said his wife had been ill and attempted suicide by gas a week ago. He said she had found love letters written to him by another woman and had threatened suicide because of them.

CHICAGO POLICE QUIZ DROPPED BY COUNCIL

Chief Justice Declares That Gangsters Should Be Sent to Insane Asylums.

STATE'S ATTORNEY HIT

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—Amid protesting cries of "whitewash," the city council committee on police abandoned today its widely heralded investigation of the police department.

For the moment, at least, it policy will be "hands off" while John H. Alcock, acting commissioner of police, rebuilds and runs his force unfettered by politics and unhampered by an inquiry.

In the heated debate that preceded the shelving of the investigation, Alderman Arthur F. Albert had accused the subcommittee of whitewashing the police, asserting that he has "no confidence in the State's attorney," and Chief Justice Harry Olson, of the municipal court, had urged commitment of gangsters to insane asylums.

While Judge Olson spoke two notorious gangsters were in criminal court, one—Anthony "Red" Kissane—receiving a year's sentence in Cook County jail and $300 fine for carrying a concealed weapon; and the other, Jack McGurn, facing a jury with sardonic grin while his attorneys tried to save him from a similar fate.

That the police will be let alone in their search for the killer of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Tribune reporter, was evident, too, in the statement of John A. Swanson, State's attorney, that he is more concerned with an immediate solution of the Lingle murder than with an investigation of the background conditions responsible for the wave of gang killings. Allegations of collusion between gangsters and police, he said, are still in a "state of rumor" and in no condition to be presented to the grand jury.

"The whole thing can be described as a whitewash," interjected Alderman Albert. "This subcommittee tells us we will 'hamper the police department.' They say we should leave this investigation to the State's attorney and the grand jury and the Association of Commerce. No one here is going to stop this investigation by this committee. We should drive ahead, publicly, in a town meeting if necessary. I'll be frank. I'll say that I have no confidence in the State's attorney."

Chief Justice Olson termed Alcock "the best man in the job I have seen in 34 years." Recalling that Frank McErlane and Jack McGurn had been found mentally defective by the city's psychiatric examiner, he averred that "such men should be locked up permanently in asylums."

DISTRICT BILL OFFER OF HOUSE SPURNED

tributed to the man who holds a similar position in the House—Minority Leader Garner.

Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, declared that the House had taken a contemptuous attitude toward the Senate in the present controversy, and he announced that, unless the Senate approved the Bingham resolution, he would not continue as a conferee on the bill. The situation had reached a point, he said, where the Senate had to decide whether or not it really was a part of the Nation's legislative machinery.

Fund Increase Cited.

Senator Bingham declared that if $9,000,000 was a fair Federal contribution in 1925 when the appropriation bill totaled only $33,000,000, it certainly couldn't be fair now that the bill totals $44,000,000. In citing over again his reasons why the contribution should be increased, he pointed out that the city is now spending $6,000,000 on a municipal center, an area to be covered with buildings to house the departments of the local government. Ultimately, he said, the project will cost $25,000,000 or $26,000,000.

The reason behind this great outlay, he said, is the city's desire to put up monumental buildings that will match the beauty of the Federal buildings that will line the other side of Pennsylvania avenue. No other city, he said, would think of spending such a sum.

In answer to a question by Senator Black as to the tax rate here, Senator Bingham declared that it was $1.70. He and Senator Phipps explained, however, that the assessment here is closer to the actual selling price of property than it is in any other city.

Pittsburgh Rate Referred to.

Senator Howell, who opposed the Bingham resolution, used the same arguments that had been used by his fellow Nebraskan, Mr. Simmons, in the House. The tax rate in Pittsburgh, he said, is 100 per cent higher than it is here.

Senator Phipps, who owns property in Pittsburgh, declared that the basis of assessment is different there. The Nebraskan replied that he knew of cases here where the assessed value is not more than one-half of the selling value.

Senator Capper declared that the House not only had been uncompromising but "arrogant" in the present controversy.

"For that reason," he declared, "I think the matter should not go unchallenged."

And it did not. A few minutes later the Senate gave its overwhelming vote of confidence to the conferees.

Shenandoah Heat Wave Broken by Light Shower

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 24.—The Shenandoah Valley sweltered today in a temperature of 98 degrees in the shade before a cooling shower fell late in the afternoon to alleviate the effects of the heat wave which swept in from the Southwest this morning.

The day was the hottest June 24 recorded by the Dale Enterprise weather station since the 101 reading in 1914 and was the warmest June day recorded since June 30, 1928, when the thermometer reached 99. Sixtenths of an inch of rain fell this afternoon to bring the June precipitation to 4.93 inches, about the normal rainfall.

STRIKE RIOT GUARDS BRISTLE IN SEVILLE

One Dead, 250 Hurt After Two Days of Fighting in City Streets.

ARMY TROOPS PREPARED

Seville, Spain, June 24 (A.P.).—Civil guards, walking arsenals armed with pistols, rifles, sabers and sawed-off shotguns, patrolled Seville tonight as the city quieted after two days of fierce rioting that has caused one death and 250 injuries.

The death was that of a boy, Jose Arevalo, 11 years old, who was shot in the kidneys by a stray bullet.

Some 300 riot leaders have been arrested in the two days' clashes following a general strike. The city is in a virtual state of martial law, with civil guards and police on active duty and troops of the regular army ready to act if called upon.

Woman's Death Starts Fights.

The strike began peacefully, but trouble developed when rumors spread that Antonia Vargas, a woman worker in an olive oil factory, died as the result of police treatment during a previous strike. Authorities said the woman died in childbirth, but ordered an official investigation. They charged that the rumors of police brutality were spread by professional agitators.

Rioting yesterday caused about 150 injuries, but today started off calmly enough until nonunion bakers began selling bread on the streets. Strikers and sympathizers attacked them. The rioting soon spread to other parts of the city and was intensified when attempts were made to run street cars, the operators of which had joined the strike.

Each car was ridden by two armed civil guards as it appeared. They fired shots in the air but were soon overpowered. The angry strikers demolished four cars, chased away the crews of others, and caused the remainder to return to the barns.

Onlooker Is Wounded.

The injuries today totaled about 100. A chauffeur, named Juan, looked over one clash through curiosity and was shot in the groin. Two women and two men were taken to a hospital with skull fractures, but most of the others were treated at their homes. About three hundred persons, some of them women, have been arrested. Warrents have been issued for 20 leaders but police say most of them have fled.

There were some defections in the strike ranks today. Four thousand men and women employed in the cigarette factory made famous in the opera "Carmen" returned to work, as did the employes of several other plants.

With the restoration of order the shops reopened and citizens again ventured on the streets. Most of the stores were closed all day and few persons except the fighters were brave enough to go out.

45 DIE, 71 WOUNDED IN INDIA JAIL RIOTS

Military Police Mow Down Convicts After Pair of Sentries Is Slain.

DELIVERY PLOT IS SEEN

Rangoon, Burma, India, June 24 (A.P.).—One of the most serious prison mutinies in recent Indian history occurred here today in the Rangoon Central Jail. Before police and warders had subdued the rioters, in two hours of firing, 45 persons were killed and 71 wounded.

The dead included two sentries, two military police, a prison truck driver and 40 convicts.

Armed forces of the law poured volley after volley into the ranks of the stubbornly resisting prisoners, literally mowing them down. Many of the injured were not expected to survive.

One report attributed the outbreak to indignation among Indian convicts over the findings of the Simon commission.

Authorities said that all indications pointed to a well organized plot for a jail delivery.

Some hundred convicts, both Indians and Burmans, working in the jail shops, suddenly attacked and killed two sentries. In an instant other convicts had thronged to the mutinous cause. They raided the armory, seized all rifles and ammunition, attempted to break down the prison gates and some succeeded in scaling the walls.

Military police arrived on the scene in answer to hurry calls from within the prison. They went into action immediately. The convicts retreated, to rally and resume the attack as soon as the first weight of the warders' onslaught had diminished.

The convicts then attempted to rush the authorities, firing as they advanced. They melted away before return volleys.

The mutinous prisoners then took refuge in workshops, where they were surrounded.

Heavy firing continued for two hours before the situation finally was brought under control.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS TO GET RARE BIBLE

Otto Vollbehr has is brought here, it will be encased in glass and given a place of honor in the Library of Congress.

The other books, some in Latin, others in the fifteenth century dialects of France, Germany, Italy and Spain, set down the manners, customs, thoughts and aspirations of the people of that period, and are expected to prove a boon to American scholars.

The bill that was passed yesterday was first introduced by Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, and later in the Senate by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut.

City of Chicago Enters 14th Day of Its Flight

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—Having successfully passed the hoodoo No. 13, the City of Chicago entered the fourteenth day of its refueling flight for world honors. At 4:40 p. m. (Central standard time), it had completed 13 days—312 hours—of flight.

John and Kenneth Hunter, pilots, have expressed themselves in notes as confident they can increase the world's record of 420 hours, set last year in St. Louis. They already have broken their own record of 262 hours, by 50 hours. They set their previous record last summer with the same motor and plane, then known as the Chicago-We Will.

Aviators Travel 900 Miles By Blind Flying Instrument

Army Fliers, Inventors of Device, Land Safely at Scott Field, Ill., From Brooks Field, Tex.; Plan Washington Hop Today.

Scott Field, Ill., June 24 (A.P.).—An instrument for blind flying with which two Army officers have been experimenting for several months today enabled Capt. William C. Ocker, one of the inventors, to pilot a plane approximately 900 miles from San Antonio, Tex., to Scott Field, Ill., from a covered cockpit that afforded no view of the outside world. He was accompanied, and part of the time aided, by Lieut. C. J. Crane, coinventor, who occupied an open cockpit as a safety pilot. Their destination is Washington, D. C., where they expect to fly tomorrow after stopping overnight at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Capt. Ocker, who termed the trip an unofficial test, said he experienced no great difficulty in today's flight, but that a few times he strayed from his charted course and had to be righted by Lieut. Crane. Both Ocker and Crane said they believe the device will prove a success for blind flying.

It is a flight integrator, a model airplane mounted on the instrument board. It combines the functions of a bank indicator, inclinometer and turn indicator.

The fliers took off from Brooks Field at 5:02 a. m. and Capt. Ocker piloted the ship about 400 miles directly over the Hat Box Field at Muskogee, Okla., for their first scheduled landing. Lieut. Crane brought the plane to earth. It was between Muskogee and Scott Field that Capt. Ocker got off the course, but Lieut. Crane righted him and they landed at 2:10 p. m., only ten minutes behind time.

An altitude of between 3,000 and 5,000 feet was maintained throughout the trip. Weather conditions were excellent and the fliers were favored by a strong tail wind.

JONES COMPLETES PROHIBITION ROSTER

Mrs. Willebrandt's Former Aid Named Assistant to Woodcock.

DISTRICTS TO BE CUT

(Associated Press.)

With the selection of Howard T. Jones as assistant to Amos W. W. Woodcock, Attorney General Mitchell yesterday completed his choice of executives to direct the work of the Prohibition Bureau after its transfer to the Justice Department on July 1. Woodcock was named director of prohibition enforcement Monday.

Jones for years was assistant to Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt when she was Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition prosecution. He also has been assistant to G. A. Youngquist, Assistant Attorney General, who succeeded Mrs. Willebrandt. He has been in active charge of most of the prohibition work done by the Department of Justice during the last few years.

It now remains for Mr. Mitchell to announce the reorganization of the prohibition districts of the country, which is expected before the last of the week.

While no definite word has come from him, it has been said that the number of administrative districts would be cut from 27 to 10 to conform with the judicial circuits and that the number of enforcement districts would be greatly increased.

The department in announcing Mr. Jones' appointment said:

"Mr. Jones is executive assistant to Assistant Attorney General Youngquist. He has been in close touch with the Prohibition Bureau and the United States attorneys and has acted as liaison officer between the departments with relation to activities under the national prohibition act ever since it went into effect.

"Mr. Jones is a native and resident of Pennsylvania. He is 37 years old and has been in the service of the Department of Justice since 1916. While employed in the department at Washington he studied law at Georgetown Law School and received the degree of bachelor of laws in 1919 and that of master of laws in 1920.

"The appointment of Mr. Jones is another step toward obtaining closer cooperation between the investigating and the prosecuting forces, which is the object of the transfer of the prohibition activities to the Department of Justice."

The Chester is expected to leave in a month for a cruise to the Mediterranean.

DELAY ON NAVAL PACT URGED BY SENATORS' ROUND ROBIN

length on the London treaty, since it consists of 26 separate articles.

Rule VII of the Senate provides that a treaty shall be "proceeded with by articles, and the amendments reported by the committee (none in this case) shall be first acted upon, after which other amendments may be proposed." The opposition is scheming to offer a series of amendments which they plan to prolong discussion and bring about the delay which is sought preparatory to forcing the treaty over.

That Mr. Hoover will recede from his demand for immediate action, in the face of the round robin, is hardly credible, but the main hope of the administration, confronted by the antagonistic mode of the Senate, appears to lie in applying cloture; that is, the rule to limit debate and force a prompt vote. Whether administration leaders are willing to face that alternative is doubtful. Most of them are loath at all times to resort to what the opposition always denounces as "gag rule," and this is especially true in dealing with treaties.

"The only time," declared Mr. Moses today, "when the Senate applies cloture to debate upon a treaty is when it is in the interest of some foreign nation."

Next Move is Hoover's.

Such a charge would inevitably be made, but the treaty's supporters at present see no other remedy for the bad situation now existing. Ironically, the treaty would be overwhelmingly ratified whenever brought to a vote, but the fates are conspiring to thwart that. The signers of the round robin set forth that the Senate has been in session almost continuously since December of 1928, that the wishes of a quarter of the Senate (24 senators), deserve to be considered, and that by precedent the convenience of but a few senators is frequently the determining factor in taking action or deferring it on pending matters.

The petitioners—somewhat owlish—also argued to the President that a matter of such grave importance as the London treaty should not be taken up when the Senate is straining to get away and is exhausted by long continued sessions.

White House officials, who made known that the round robin had been received, said that the next administration move has not yet been determined.

HOUSE LEADERS CALL CAUCUS TO CONSIDER VETERANS' BILL

home town or in camp and afterward enjoys 7 to 12 years of good health, then after all that time incurs any affliction is thereby declared to have a disability due to the war and is to be compensated for pension on the same basis as the man who suffered in the trenches and from actual battle. It contains many other discriminations and injustices.

"These things violate not only the facts, but the very integrity of government. It is a sad thing for our Government to set standards of subterfuge to our people. It is unfair to all other veterans who have become disabled in civil life. It is unfair to the whole spirit of the World War veterans.

"There are emergencies and marginal cases which I have insisted should be cared for and which will be cared for and there is the additional necessity for us to study the broader subject exhaustively before we plunge.

Legion Views Overridden.

"The American Legion presented a bill designed for emergencies which has had the earnest support of many administration members, but their views have been overridden. The sensible thing is either to take care of these emergencies or marginal cases and then soberly determine future action, or alternately, to make the beginnings of sound action now on such foundations as will contribute to the ultimate settlement of the problem with real justice to veterans and with generosity in solution for the future. Such action can be taken without our present financial resources, and I believe the Nation would support that."

In the meantime, the incomplete bill lay on Speaker Longworth's desk. It must yet go to conference for the ironing out of differences between the House and the Senate which it is believed will be readily done.

The House bill as originally passed was loaded up out of all bounds and the American Legion is now concentrating on the passage of the Senate bill.

Reticent on Tax Increase.

There has been considerable talk about a tax increase if the bill becomes law but the President made no reference to this in his statement. In fact, he said that although the "financial burdens do constitute a serious embarrassment to the Government and the country," there are other considerations "even more serious."

The main thing he apparently has against the measure is that it advances the presumptive period from 1925 to 1930; that is, the period in which an ailing veteran is assumed to have incurred his ailment while in war service.

Walter Newton, of the White House secretariat, spent most of the afternoon at the Capitol conferring with House leaders, but it is not believed that either he or the leaders entertained any serious hope that the bill might be stopped. One leader said privately, in fact, that he doubted if more than 50 votes would be mustered to sustain the President. There seems to be no question about the Senate overriding the veto.

Veteran Bill Success Seen Even If Vetoed

New Orleans, La., June 24 (A.P.).—Disabled American veterans were told today by their commander, William J. Murphy, that if President Hoover vetoed the liberalized veterans' compensation bill Congress would override it.

"I confidently expect action by the President within 24 hours," he told the veterans' convention. "He will either sign it or veto it at once. My information is that the votes to nullify his veto are in hand and that the bill will become law."

Col. George Ijams, of Washington, assistant director of the Veterans' Bureau, said if the bill became law, 457,000 veterans would be affected.

"Our first act will be to take care of the new thousands who will come under its provisions," he said. "Every case which has been disallowed under the old laws will be reopened."

Suspect in Maniac Killings Cleared

Girl Companions of Slain Men Say Captive Is Not Guilty Person.

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—The latest of a long string of suspects who have been questioned in connection with the deaths of two men at the hands of the Queens maniac killer was definitely cleared tonight.

Nicholas La Roche, 38 years old, sexton of a Mount Vernon, N. Y., church, was scrutinized by Betty Ring and Catharine May, companions of the two men at the time they were killed. The girls decided that La Roche was not the slayer.

La Roche was taken into custody today by Mount Vernon police who believed he answered descriptions of the insane man. The girls said there was some resemblance, but that he was not the man.

With La Roche definitely eliminated, police were again in an impasse in their search for the slayer.

Kingsford-Smith Plans New York-Coast Hop

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Friends of Capt. Kingsford-Smith revealed today that he planned to make a nonstop flight to the Pacific Coast from New York City, probably some time next week, if he reached here on his ocean flight.

That would complete the circuit of the world which he began two years ago when he took off from the west coast on his thrilling flight to Australia. Since then he has flown from Australia to England and with the completion of the ocean hop would only lack the 2,700 mile link between here and the blue Pacific to finish his circumnavigation of the globe.

The other three suspects were captured.

PARTY LEADERSHIP THRUST ON MORROW

DEMOCRATS ALSO MEET

Trenton, June 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Leadership of the Republican party in New Jersey was thrust upon Dwight W. Morrow, nominee for the United States Senate, as delegates to the Republican State convention here today hearkened to his advice and inserted a wet plank in the tentative platform, which conforms to his views on repeal of the eighteenth amendment and return of liquor control to the States.

The action marks the abandonment of the Republican dry stand which has been traditional in this State since prohibition was enacted.

Democrats of the State, also in convention here, adopted a plank which vigorously espoused repeal of the amendment and Volstead act. Both major parties, therefore, were recorded for the first time in any State as favoring the overthrow of present prohibition legislation.

According to State law, the tentative party platforms drawn by the resolutions committees today must be submitted to each delegate for study. The platforms will be ratified, or amended, next Tuesday when the conventions again assemble here. In the past ratification has been a formality.

Party Unity Assured.

Ambassador Morrow arrived here this morning and conferred with State Senator Joseph G. Wolber, majority leader of the legislature and chairman of the resolutions committee, on the wet plank. He made it clear later he came merely as an onlooker and adviser and did not wish to force his views upon the convention in the face of the apparent inability of the leaders to agree on the provisions of the plank prior to Morrow's arrival. However, it became clear his intervention assured not only inclusion of a repeal plank, but also his elevation to leadership of the party.

During the two-hour session of the delegates, party harmony was pledged. Representative Franklin W. Fort and former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Morrow's opponents in the primary, promised their support in the fall election campaign. United States Senator Hamilton F. Kean, former Gov. Edward C. Stokes and Gov. Larson, other speakers, also stressed the importance of party unity.

Leaves for Capital.

The Ambassador left here at midnight for Washington, where, he said, he would confer with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson on diplomatic affairs before returning to his post in Mexico. He will take his departure from his Englewod home either Friday or Saturday, he said.

Trenton, June 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Democrats in convention here today consigned the prohibition question, which has been the leading platform plank of other years, to the background and brought forth new material upon which Alexander Simpson, of Jersey City, Democratic candidate for United States senator, will base his fight for the United States senatorship against Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow.

Morrow's Financial Status.

Major planks being considered by the Democratic resolutions committee include the effect of the present Hoover administration upon the working masses; the Hawley-Smoot tariff law; the power of the British government in dictating armament; the World Court; protection of colored people against lynching; use of labor injunctions as strike-breaking apparatus and the mingling of politics with the United States Supreme Court by the appointment of Judge Parker, of North Carolina, by President Hoover.

Charging that Ambassador Morrow has adopted the Democratic doctrine advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment for political expediency, the Democrats expect to insert the same plank in the 1930 platform, but will concentrate on other major issues to win the campaign. The financial connections of Ambassador Morrow will also be stressed, Senator Simpson intimated at the convention, when he assured the delegates "the golden calf of Wall street will not be substituted for the American Eagle" in the approaching senatorial fight.

Power Board Bill Signed by Hoover

Commission Is Expected to Be Named Before Congress Adjourns.

(Associated Press.)

An independent Federal power commission of five members was created yesterday to devote its entire time to administering the Nation's water power resources.

President Hoover signed the Parker bill to reorganize the commission. Under the act, the existing commission, consisting of the Secretaries of War, Interior and Agriculture, will be discarded. The President expects to name the members in time for the Senate to confirm them before adjournment.

Under the act, the new commission will begin functioning July 1 if three members have assumed their posts. The President is authorized to assign officers of the Army Engineering Corps and officials of the Agriculture and Interior Departments to duty under the new bipartisan commission.

Two 'Rum Rebels' Accept Sentence

13 Others Accused of Plot in Idaho Acquitted by Jury.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 24 (A.P.).—The Federal Government's campaign against alleged "rum rebels" of the Northwest progressed today, two city officials deciding not to appeal prison sentences at about the same time thirteen other so-called "rebels" were acquitted by a jury.

At Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, former Mayor W. H. Herrick and Police Chief W. J. Bailey appeared at the United States marshal's office and said they would not appeal their conviction of conspiracy to violate prohibition laws. Each is under sentence to fifteen months in prison. Herrick and Bailey, with 32 other Coeur d'Alene citizens, were found guilty of conspiring in the levying of taxes in the guise of regular fines against liquor sellers. The money was placed in the city treasury.

At Wallace, Idaho, today the city council passed a resolution in appreciation of the "public-spirited and unselfish services" of former Mayor Herman Rossi, who resigned Saturday after his conviction with 31 other Wallace citizens, also on charges of conspiracy to violate prohibition laws.

Navy to Get Williams' $90,000 Plane for $1

(Associated Press.)

The airplane upon which $90,000 was spent to prepare it for former Lieut. Alford Williams to use in the 1929 Schneider Cup races is to be bought for $1 for experimental purposes.

The plane, the Mercury, was built by Lieut. Williams with the cooperation of the Navy, the funds being furnished by the Mercury Flying Corporation.

Lieut. Williams found the plane too heavy to leave the water and resigned from the Navy when he was ordered to sea before he completed his speed experimentation.

The Navy Bureau of Aeronautics announced yesterday the racer will be bought from the corporation and used in further speed experiments.

HARRISON, IN RADIO TALK, HITS TARIFF

General Revision of Rates Held Up as Reason for Business Confusion.

STOCK DECLINES CITED

(Associated Press.)

Replying to Republican arguments in defense of the new tariff law, Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, told a Nation-wide radio audience last night that if the "selfish interests" had not prevented a "limited" revision, "we would not now be experiencing such a confusion in business and observing such universal indignation on the part of the American people."

Speaking over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Senator Harrison said administration spokesmen were "desperately engaged in a concerted, unfair attempt to shift the responsibility for the present deplorable business situation by charging that the continued unsettled conditions of the stock market is the result of a plot to bring discredit upon the party in power."

G. O. P. Leaders Scored.

"They charge," he continued, "that part of the alleged scheme was the long-drawn-out consideration of the tariff bills by the Senate. Was there anything more ridiculous? Every person familiar with the facts knows that the reason the tariff bill was so long before the Senate was because of the brazen disregard by Republican leaders of their campaign promises and the purposes for which the Congress was called into extra session.

"Instead of confining the work to a limited revision, they immediately applied their hands to a general revision.

"You must know where the blame lies, and the terror-stricken efforts of those in power to place the responsibility elsewhere and their pleas for mercy will assuredly fall on deaf ears."

Senator Harrison asserted in "no other administration has there been manifested such a lack of confidence either in the statements or actions of those who direct the affairs of this Nation."

President's Statement Cited.

"When the President, nine days ago, thought it necessary to publish his praise of the measure—and that before he had signed it—every stock traded in on the New York Stock Exchange went down the next day," he said, adding: "When the President had failed in his effort at artificial stimulation, then the Secretary of the Treasury applied his hand, issued a most optimistic statement, and immediately there followed a still greater decline of stock values.

"Then Senator Watson, who had worked with Grundy in framing it, sought to defend the act not by an analysis of the measure, but through the employment of his fine oratorical powers in generalities and the stock market further declined.

"Then the successor to Mr. Hoover, Secretary Lamont, tried his hand, as did his assistant, Dr. Klein, and the stock market further declined."

Senator Harrison said the "public response to these broadcasts presents one of the most pitiable pictures in American history."

ILLNESS OF PIUS XI TROUBLES VATICAN

Uremic Poisoning May Set In, Fear Doctors of Pontiff.

CONDITION GETS WORSE

which had been preceded by a thorough drainage, had proved a more severe strain than was anticipated.

The pontiff's condition is understood to have taken a turn for the worse yesterday and today, chiefly because he insisted on receiving numerous pilgrims from Spain and Italy.

In Vatican circles it is pointed out that for a man who has just turned 73, difficulty in ridding the system of poisons is not uncommon. This would be particularly true of such a man as Pope Pius, who after an active outdoor youth and middle age has been constrained to a sedentary life.

As sultry summer weather already has oppressed Rome and the Vatican City, his suite is taking extreme precautions to guard his health. The doctors have counseled rest, and it is hoped that their treatment will prevail over the Pope's active zeal and iron will.

Meanwhile, many Canadian and American pilgrims converging upon Rome for the canonization of the eight North American martyrs next Sunday are dismayed at the prospects of the Pope's having to forego pronouncing the decree of canonization. This function he can not delegate to any other church dignitary, no matter how high.

The same holds true for a secret consistory next Monday and a public consistory on July 3, when he is to create five new cardinals.

Pope Pius XI, 260th pontiff, was born at Desio, May 31, 1957. He was ordained a priest December 20, 1879, appointed apostolic visitor to Poland in 1918, appointed nuncio in 1919 and promoted to the titular see of Lepanto in 1919.

He was created a cardinal June 16, 1921. He was proclaimed to that office five days later and promoted to the archdiocese of Milan as cardinal archbishop at the same time. He was elected Pope February 6, 1922, and crowned February 12, six days later.

High Sense of Dramatic.

His holiness achieved the title of "The Pope of the Conciliation," when after two years of negotiation with the Mussolini government an end was obtained of the "Roman question" which for 59 years had restricted the pontiff's realm.

The agreement restored the Vatican's temporal power, with rule over the Vatican City State.

Pope Pius XI gained the reputation of being one of the most forceful and successful pontiffs of modern times. His diplomatic ability won for him the right to reign as temporal as well as spiritual sovereign, the first Pope since Pius IX to hold that power. He was the first Pope since 1870 to leave the confines of the Vatican and end a conception held by his generation of the Pope as a "Vatican prisoner."

His sense of the dramatic was developed to a high degree. This was shown in his personally celebrated mass of expiation on March 19 of this year for the antireligious campaign in Soviet Russia.

Episode With France.

The Pope's political accomplishments were not concluded without much negotiation and opposition. In the months following signing of the Vatican pact there were sharp controversies between Pius and Premier Mussolini, the latter interpreting the treaties in a manner the pontiff refused to accept, but these differences of view were virtually dispelled when, late in 1929, the Pope accorded an audience to Secretary Turati of the Fascist party.

Condemnation of the "Action Francais," Royalist party in France, which reached a climax in 1926 and kept French Catholics in a turmoil, was another outstanding event in the reign of Pius. The Pope branded the teachings of Charles Maurras, an agnostic, pagan and immoral. The Holy See disapproved of the "politics first" precept and his doctrines against the republic.

During this episode several high dignitaries of the church, including Cardinal Billot, eminent Jesuit theologian, resigned. The Pope also removed as superior of the French Seminary of Santa Chiara Father Lefloc, of the Order of the Holy Ghost, who had previously enjoyed the fullest confidence of the pontiff.

MEDAL CREATOR DUE TO BE NAMED TODAY

Bicentennial Committee in New York to Choose Artist for 1932 Celebration.

EUROPE DRIVE PLANNED

Selection of the artist who will create the medal to be used for the George Washington bicentennial celebration is expected to be made at a meeting of the bicentennial medal committee in New York today.

The medal will be used for various purposes and in various ways throughout the celebration, but whether its design will be dictated by the committee or selected from ideas to be submitted by the artist is not yet determined.

Robert J. Grant, director of the mint, is chairman of the committee, which will convene in the New York offices of Representative Sol Bloom, who, with Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, is associate director of the committee.

Other members of the committee are Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission; Jules E. Fraser, A. A. Weinman and Herbert Adams, of New York; Lorado Taft, of Chicago, and Albert Bushnell Hart, of Cambridge, Mass.

Representative Bloom is to sail Saturday on the Leviathan as a delegate to the Interparliamentary Union to be held in London July 12. After adjournment of that session, he said last night, he plans to tour England, France, Germany and Poland for the purpose of interesting Americans abroad in the bicentennial.

American chambers of commerce, American Legion posts, women's clubs and hundreds of other organizations of Americans in Europe are to be interviewed with the idea of inducing them to duplicate and supplement abroad the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, which will be observed throughout the United States in 1932.

"The ideas advanced by George Washington upon which the United States was founded and has progressed to its present stage of leadership now influence the entire world," Representative Bloom said. "All of the European nations now are interested in the same constitutional form of government such as we enjoy here, and George Washington is respected, admired and honored universally. We feel, therefore, that Americans should celebrate the anniversary of his birth, no matter in what part of the world they happen to be."

Representative Bloom's trip will be followed up with constant communication between the bicentennial officials here and the American organizations in Europe, to the end that a continuous and interrelated celebration may be staged in foreign lands identical in scope and idea as that for which the United States now is planning within its own boundaries, he said.

Closing of Park Part Of Street Is Opposed

Adverse report was made to Congress by the District Commissioners yesterday on the pending bill providing for closing Arizona avenue and a part of P street northwest and transfer of the parts of the streets lying within Foundry Branch Parkway to the director of public buildings and public parks.

They have no objection to transfer of those sections to Col. U. S. Grant 3d, the Commissioners said, but they did object to closing that part of P street outside the parkway. There is no need for immediate action on the proposal, they added, and the object sought can be achieved better through other legislation now pending if and when that is enacted.

Three Men Indicted On Gambling Charge

George H. Green, Leo Triplett and George W. Quinn are charged with setting up a gaming table in an indictment returned yesterday by the District grand jury. The true bill followed a raid last June 18 by police on premises on Eleventh street northwest near C street. The raid was executed by special policemen lent to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover by the Police Department.

The raiding police are said to have found a quantity of racehorse slips, slot machines and gaming paraphernalia. The indictment is the second returned recently as a result of the United States attorney's antigaming activities.

Sister Is Absolved In Killing of Boy

Gun Discharge Accidental, Coroner's Jury Says on Hearing Story.

Though the recollection of shooting her only brother will go through life with Hilda Berman, 13 years old, no official blame will rest upon her. The coroner's jury yesterday rendered a verdict of "unintentional homicide" in the death of little David Berman, 10 years old, who lived at 914 Irving street northwest. The boy was shot Monday by his sister during a tussle for a gun the boy had taken from his father's room.

The children were left alone in the house, their father being at work and their mother away. Hilda wanted David to help wash dishes, but David refused, on the plea that that was girls' work. The little girl slapped him several times and he went upstairs and got the gun. Realizing the danger, the sister attempted to wrest the weapon from him and in the struggle it was discharged. The lad died an hour later in Sibley Hospital.

After the death of the boy, Hilda was taken to the Receiving Home, but later released in the custody of her parents, after police had interviewed her. The first story told by the child did not mention the quarrel over the dish-washing.

Pair Fleece Woman Of $700 by Purse Ruse

"Easy come—easy go" is the only consoling thought for Fanny Waddy, who lost a legacy from her mother of $700 to two engaging strangers working a variant of the old pocketbook trick.

Last Thursday the colored woman, who lives in the 1900 block of I street, was walking on the street with a pair of casual acquaintances. They found a pocketbook, which seemed to Fanny to have $2,100 in it. It was decided to divide it share and share alike, and the friends went off to the bank to have it changed. Before they went Fanny gave them her $700 to make it easier to get change. But they didn't come back, even after days and days. Then Fanny took her troubles to sympathetic police, who promised to do what they could.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS CONGRESS HOLD PICNIC

The District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers held its final meeting of the season yesterday at a picnic luncheon in Rock Creek Park at which prizes were awarded. Left to right, front row—Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter presenting the Adolph Kahn trophy to Mrs. J. C. Brown, representing the Keene School, for having the largest number of delegates attending the monthly conferences; Mrs. Walter Lyddane, of the Gage School, who had the highest percentage of delegates in child welfare work; Mrs. Joseph H. Newton, who represented the past presidents of the congress, presenting Mrs. Rafter with a beautiful robe. Back—Mrs. John Cournyn, of the Buchanan School, who had the greatest percentage of increase in membership and Mrs. L. H. Magruder, of the Blair-Hayes School, who sold the greatest number of child welfare magazine subscriptions.

Board of Welfare Aids Reappointed

J. J. Edson, W. W. Millan and Mrs. H. S. Cummings to Serve Six Years.

John Joy Edson, Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming and W. W. Millan were reappointed by the District Commissioners yesterday as members of the Board of Public Welfare for terms of six years each, beginning on July 1, the day after their present terms expire.

Appointment of Edward J. Newcomb to the welfare board was urged last week by Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, and on account of the criticism which has been leveled at the board since its present personnel was named there was some belief that the Commissioners might take advantage of their opportunity to introduce new members on the board, but this was not done.

The present board is largely a combination of the old board of charities and board of children's guardians which were abolished by Congress after an era of widespread criticism.

Athlete Forfeits Collateral of $25

Beverly L. Smith Repeats Story of His Alleged Holdup by Pair.

Beverly L. Smith, Washington and Lee athlete, who on Monday was charged with making a false report of a holdup at Fourteenth and L streets northwest, yesterday forfeited $25 in Police Court.

Although Smith did not appear in court, he reiterated that he had been robbed of $10, his suitcase and topcoat by a man and woman. He repudiated his alleged false report confession to police, stating that police forced the statement from him after a grilling of several hours and after his coat and bag had been found in a drug store.

Smith denied that he had sought to have a cousin living here cash a check for him, explaining that he had sufficient funds to return to his home in Lynchburg, Va.

Four Men Indicted On Murder Counts

One Charged With Slaying Wife; Two Chinese Are Cited.

Four men—two Chinese and two Negroes—were indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury yesterday on charges of first degree murder in connection with three recent slayings.

Lee Din and Lee Soon are charged with the killing of Lee King, another Chinese, on the night of June 12, 1929, at Eleventh and M streets northwest. The dead man is said to have been thrown from an automobile at that corner. Police learned that he was an alleged narcotic informer. Both men were indicted previously but the United States attorney again presented the case to the grand jury after pleas in abatement to the previous indictment were filed.

William Carter, Negro, was indicted on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of his wife, Marion Carter, on last May 9. Amos Mungo, Negro, was indicted on a similar charge as the alleged slayer of Spofford Blackwell, Negro, last April 9.

Watchman Victim Of Hit-Run Driver

Woman Companion of Rum Car Operator Is Held After Crash.

Police are still searching for the driver of a liquor-laden car which injured a watchman and crashed into another machine on the Good Hope road near Nineteenth street southeast early yesterday morning. The car and its cargo of 70 quarts of liquor was seized and the woman companion of the driver was arrested, but the man escaped.

Philip Bachenheimer, 72 years old, of 523 Eighteenth street northwest, a watchman at an excavation on Good Hope road, is the injured man. He was hurt when he tried to warn the speeding car that there was only room for one line of traffic on the road.

After knocking down the watchman, the car sped on and struck the auto of George C. Currier, 26 years old, of Mount Rainier, Md. At this point the driver fled. The woman, Hazel Shellhouse, 23 years old, of Ninth street near O street was charged with investigation at the Eleventh Precinct. Backenheimer's injuries are not serious.

Capital Textile Expert Gets License to Marry

George Middleton, 66 years old, a Government textile expert, of 1324 Buchanan street northwest, yesterday in New York obtained a license to wed Mrs. Beatrice Mary Carless, 50 years old, of the Martha Washington Hotel there. They announced they would be married at once at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth avenue.

Mr. Middleton was born in England, the son of George and Elizabeth Moore Middleton, and has been a widower since 1918. Mrs. Carless also is a native of England. Her husband died in 1928.

Grand Jury to Get Hastings Charges

Alleged Hertz Confederate Held in $1,500 Bond on Fraud Count.

Willwood Hastings, said to be a confederate of Gustav Hertz in an alleged mail fraud conspiracy, was held under $1,500 bonds yesterday in Police Court for District grand jury action on a charge of false pretenses and for Massachusetts authorities on a charge of nonsupport. Bond in the former case was set at $500 while the $1,000 bond was asked in the latter. Hastings already is under bond of $2,500 on the mail order charge.

The false pretense charge is said to have resulted from alleged efforts of the man to sell securities. Herbert E. Brummel, of Tenth street northwest near C street, told the court that Hastings had represented to him that a security was worth more than $50 a share when in reality the entire ten shares were said to be worth only $25.

Charges against Hertz and Hastings in connection with the alleged mail fraud came to light several days ago following a raid by Department of Justice agents on offices of the company with which both men are alleged to have been connected. The two men are charged with certain irregularities in buying up stock of the F. H. Smith Co.

Doctor Indicted On Liquor Count

N. D. Brecht Charged With Selling Rum to Dry Agents.

Dr. Nelson D. Brecht, of Twenty-second street northwest, near F street, was indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury yesterday on charges of sale and possesion of liquor. The physician is under $1,500 bonds.

The arrest of the physician is said to have followed visits to his office by prohibition agents, who are alleged to have sought prescriptions for liquor. The doctor is said to have told them that he was out of blanks but that he could sell them some liquor. The agents reported that they had made the purchases.

The doctor was arrested May 27 and the alleged sales are said to have been made on May 7 and May 17. The indictment is in four counts.

Firemen's Parade Judges to Meet

1930 Labor Day Event to Be Largest Seen in Capital, Says Marshal.

Washington's annual firemen's parade on Labor Day this year will be the largest in the history of the city Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, parade marshal, declared yesterday on the basis of entries and inquiries already received from fire departments and organizations of other cities.

A meeting of 90 prospective judges for the parade will be held in the board room in the District building at 8 o'clock tonight. Dr. Frank E. Gibson, who has charge of the judging of the various entries in the parade, will outline the work which is to be done.

The number of entries and their diversity, Sergt. Bargagni said, has increased the difficulty of awarding the many prizes which are offered each year and at the meeting tonight the details of the various classes will be gone into thoroughly and the judges will be instructed in the procedure to be followed in selecting the winners.

Alleged Young Thieves' Activities Investigated

Tenth Precinct police yesterday were still unvestigating the activities of the "Black Cat Gang," three young colored boys who were arrested Monday by Private R. J. Murphy on charges of robbing eleven stores and vacant houses in Mount Pleasant in the last three months.

The boys, who are being held at Receiving Home, are Philip Smith, 16 years old, of Harvard street near Sixth street northwest; Lawrence Scott, 15 years old, of Harvard street near Seventh street northwest, and Robert Thomas, 15 years old, of the same block. The loot consisted of cigarettes, canned goods and electric lighting fixtures.

GEORGETOWN GROUP LAYS LIBRARY PLAN

Dorsey Hyde, Jr., Is Chosen Chairman of Committee to Aid Project.

MRS. M'CORMICK HELPS

The Georgetown Public Library Association was organized at a meeting last night to obtain a public library for the oldest and most historical section of the National Capital.

Membership in the organization has been established with 28 representative citizens of Georgetown. Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., executive secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, has been named chairman.

Impetus will be given the work of the association from the start by financial aid of a number of citizens' associations. Members of citizens' associations who are also members of the library association have agreed that their associations will finance the Georgetown association.

Georgetown Room Planned.

Added to this backing a Georgetown room for the library is being planned, contents of which will be sought in the form of contributions from Georgetown citizens. The room will be made up of historical objects pertaining to Georgetown, including books and pictures.

A bill providing for purchase of a site for the library and erection of the building has been introduced by Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick.

In a letter to the association, made public last night, Mrs. McCormick expressed confidence that the bill would be taken up and favorably acted upon at the next session of Congress. The association gave a formal vote of thanks for the efforts Representative McCormick has put forth in interest of the library.

Next Meeting in Autumn.

The next meeting of the Library Association will not be called until the third week in September. In the meantime various committees will plan for the work to be undertaken next fall. A mass meeting will be called when Congress convenes.

All organied groups in Georgetown will devote meetings in the fall to the library objective.

The charter membership of the association includes the following: John H. Hanna, William S. Conant, Albion K. Parrish, Lieut. Col. H. B. Jordan, N. W. Dorsey, Rear Admiral H. H. Rousseau, Mrs. R. Frederick Whitehead, Mrs. J. D. Sullivan, former Representative John H. Small, the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, Mrs. Robert W. Woolley, J. B. Wyckoff, Col. Edward Clifford, J. S. Gorrell, Isaac B. Nordlinger and Maj. Gen. W. M. Black.

Damage of $150 Done By Flames at G. P. O.

A small fire yesterday in the tool shop of the new building of the Government Printing Office did about $150 damage. The blaze was discovered about 4:30 o'clock as hundreds of employes were streaming toward the exits.

Firemen experienced no difficulty in extinguishing the flames, which are thought to have started from spontaneous combustion, according to the captain of the guard.

Drive on Venders Ordered by Pratt

Law Restricting Peddlers on Streets Has to Be Enforced, He Says.

Disciplinary action against captains who fail to enforce the law restricting street venders was threatened yesterday by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, in a general order sent to all captains.

Several memorandums have been sent captains about the matter in the last year, but complaints still are being received, Maj. Pratt said in his order, the tenor of which was sharp.

"It should not be necessary for headquarters to direct commanding officers to bring about the enforcement of this or any other regulation or law," he said in the order, "as it is their duty to see that all laws and regulations are enforced and not to wait for an order from headquarters or a complaint to be made before taking action.

"The inspectors have been instructed to observe the enforcement of the regulation refered to in the various precincts and if repeated violations are reported, disciplinary action will be instituted against the officer responsible."

Enroute you cross Minnesota 10,000 lakes region; the Bad Lands of North Dakota and the old Indian and ranching country of eastern Montana. For miles along the picturesque Yellowstone River, your Northern Pacific train follows the historic trail of Lewis and Clark.

The Yellowstone tour—the preeminent sight-seeing trip of the world is made in four and one-half days at a total cost of only $45 if you stop at the lodges, or $54 at the hotels. This sum also covers automobile transportation for 250 miles through the park, a vacation bargain unequaled.

Yellowstone is so wonderful and so friendly! The fantastic geysers; jewel-colored hot springs and great yellow Grand Canyon reveal, as nothing else can, how marvelous is the world. Mile after mile the park coaches carry you through great fragrant pine forests up mountain slopes and past clear, shimmering waters. Around every turn new and beautiful scenes appear; and you never know where Mother Nature is going to spring her next surprise. Hotels and lodges are noted for their hospitality; dancing and entertainment make the evenings enjoyable.

The round trip fare for the entire rail and water trip is as low as $138.95 via Buffalo, which includes a one-way trip by steamer and meals and berth on steamer.

ORGANIZATION URGED TO NEGRO EMPLOYES

De Priest Tells U. S. Workers to Advance Selves by More Efficiency.

UNFAIRNESS IS CLAIMED

Oscar De Priest, representative from the First Illinois District, addressed colored Government employes last night in the parlors of the Phyllis Wheatley Young Women's Christian Association, urging them to develop themselves in connection with organizations that serve their economic welfare, and to organize among themselves for such purposes where existing organizations could not serve them.

"There must be," he said, "a better working agreement between heads of departments, bureaus and sections and the colored employe. Negro citizens should be freed from the unfair discrimination that is exerted against them in the matter of appointments in the classified service. And I think that an expression from those who shape governmental procedure would be of inestimable value in this connection.

"On the other hand, the colored employe in the Government service must prove worthy. He must let none exceed him in punctuality in the performance of every duty. His organization, if it should do nothing else, should train him to be highly efficient, and more efficient as time goes on. He must not permit his reliability to be impaired by too frequent leaves of absence for trivial reasons."

Representative De Priest expressed the belief that organization and efficiency would bring the Negro in the Government departments to a point where he would be a beneficiary of such collective bargaining as this organization might afford, so that he would receive promotion in the service when due, or at least have a comprehensive basis for investigation of failure to receive the reward of merit.

Pension for Flier Approved in House

Lafayette Escadrille Man May Get U. S. Funds for Crash Hurts.

Herman Lincoln Chatkoff yesterday came one step nearer to a pension for injuries he received when his plane crashed while he was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille when the House passed a bill introduced by Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia entitling him to an American pension.

Since his injuries, shortly after the United States entered the war, he has been receiving a pension of $9 a month from the French, but this sum, while sufficient to maintain a disabled soldier in France, does not go a long way in this country. This income he will surrender when, and if, Representative LaGuardia's bill passes the Senate and is not disapproved by the President.

The crash occurred while Chatkoff was flying from his headquarters to Paris to discover how soon the American members of the organization would be transferred to their own flying service. He received severe fractures of the skull and leg and other injuries, and has been carried as totally and permanently disabled since then.

TREE NARROWLY MISSES MAN

H. W. Mason, of 473 Maryland avenue southwest (inset), narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon when the thunderstorm blew a large tree onto an automobile on D street, near Seventh, southwest. ZIHLMAN, SIMMONS CLASH ON CROSSING $250,000 Fern Street Grade-Crossing Item Blocked by Nebraskan.

FATALITIES THERE CITED

A verbal clash between Representative Frederick N. Zihlman (Republican), of Maryland, and Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, broke out in the House yesterday when a bill to eliminate the Fern street grade crossing was reached on the calendar.

The bill, which authorizes $250,000 for an underpass, was blocked by Mr. Simmons, who declared that it was written in the interest of the people of nearby Maryland.

Mr. Zihlman denied this, saying that it would be used largely by Washingtonians. Moreover, he said, the people of Maryland will spend $150,000 on roads leading up to the crossing.

The money to eliminate the grade crossing, he said, was in the 1931 District appropriation bill, but Mr. Simmons killed the item and chose to use the money for widening H street.

"Here is a grade crossing," the Maryland member said, "on which four people have lost their lives during the last eighteen months, and the gentleman casually takes it out of the bill for beautification and widening of H street, because he thinks that improvement is more necessary than this."

Mr. Simmons' objection to the bill probably means that it is dead so far as this session is concerned.

House Quiz Asked About Venezuela

Charges of Despotism by American Citizen Bring Action.

(Associated Press.)

An investigation by the House foreign affairs committee to determine whether the United States Government is in any way responsible for alleged "depotism" in Venezuela was proposed yesterday in a resolution by Representative Gasque (Democrat), South Carolina.

The resolution said "it is inconceivable that the Government of the United States of America should continue to maintain diplomatic relations with any so-called government that maintains itself in power by inflicting the most inhuman tortures upon men, women and children, in order to present to the world an appearance of 'peace and order.'"

The action by Representative Gasque is an outgrowth of charges made by James E. Welch, formerly of Shreveport, La. Welch alleged that his wife and daughter were taken from him.

Nicaraguan Beauty Hunted; May Be Stranded in South

Entrant in Miami Contest That Ended in Row Unheard From After Leaving for West Coast; Wanted for Brazil Competition.

Miami, Fla., June 24 (A.P.).—Senorita Haydee Morales, "Miss Nicaragua" in the Latin-American contest of the Miami international bathing beauty pageant March 11, was the object today of a search inaugurated by G. A. Trice, president of the pageant association.

Trice said he believed the black-haired Nicaraguan beauty, winner of a third prize in the Latin-American contest, had been stranded en route to San Francisco to meet her father. The pageant association head said he had received word today from sponsors of an international beauty contest in Rio de Janeiro that the Nicaraguan girl was sought to enter the contest.

The search for Senorita Morales was inaugurated after officials of the pageant association awarded the title of "Miss America" to Miss Margaret Ekdahl, 18-year-old blonde of Tampa, after disqualifying Miss Janet Eastment, Fort Worth, Tex., and Miss Alberta McKellop, San Diego, Calif., from first and second places on grounds of ineligibility.

Trice said Senorita Morales left here in March with other Latin-American beauties under the guidance of Gaston Andrade on a Southern theatrical tour that was to have ended at Hollywood, where the girls expected to participate in filming a Spanish picture. The tour was broken up in Atlanta, because of financial troubles and dissension upon managerial points. Senorita Morales had expected to meet her father in San Francisco, but Trice said he had been unable to locate the father.

Trice said today that he had received no answer to his request to Miss Eastment that she return a crown, silver loving cup and $2,500 in cash that she was awarded upon her selection as "Miss America" here.

Hospital Benefit Held on Potomac

City of Washington Ride Proceeds Are to Go to Casualty.

Braving lowering skies and a wind that bore a hint of rain, a load of pleasure-seeking Washingtonians last night sought coolness on the breeze-swept breadth of the lower Potomac, aboard the steamer City of Washington.

The occasion was the benefit excursion of Casualty Hospital on the steamer donated by the Wilson Line. While no moon was in evidence, there was no indication that the lack sat heavily on the minds of any of the passengers. There was dancing on the deck, while many sat below listening to music from a phonograph.

The entire proceeds of the outing went to Casualty Hospital, a part of their drive for funds. While no estimate could be given last night of the amount which would swell the institution's coffers, to judge from the size of the crowd it will be a goodly sum.

Stolen Madonna Is Found in Vault

Prized German Art Treasure Discovered in Bank in Toronto.

Toronto, Ontario, June 24 (A.P.).—A reproduction of the famous Madonna de Cologne, one of Germany's prized art possessions, alleged to have been stolen about eighteen months ago from the art galleries in Hamburg, Germany, was found here today by police, concealed in a vault of a bank.

Will Brunk, 31, a German who has been in Canada less than two years, was arrested and held pending word from the chief of police of Berlin, who was apprised of the discovery of the art treasure and of Brunk's arrest.

The Berlin official was expected to say when an officer would be sent from Germany to take the prisoner and the expensive painting back.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury in an automobile collision.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

HOOVER STRIKES HARD.

Rarely has a President of the United States employed such vigorous language as Mr. Hoover used yesterday in a public statement criticizing the veterans' bill. "This bill," he said, "selects a particular group of 75,000 to 100,000 men, makes provision for them in the most wasteful and discriminatory way conceivable, and entirely neglects the equal rights to help of over 200,000 more veterans who are likewise suffering from disabilities incurred in civil life since the war. . . . It contains many other discriminations and injustices. These things violate not only the facts but the very integrity of government. It is a sad thing for our Government to set up standards of subterfuge to our people."

That Mr. Hoover will veto the bill if it is presented to him in its present form is a foregone conclusion. The question is whether Congress will pass the bill over his veto. The House Republicans may develop a plan to substitute provisions acceptable to the President, but the vote in the Senate gives no prospect that a modified bill would pass.

If a showdown should come between the President and Congress on this legislation there need be no doubt as to the attitude of the public. The President would be overwhelmingly supported. He has given every assurance that he wishes to liberalize the law for the care of disabled veterans. While the pending measure would demoralize the national finances and might require an increase of taxes, Mr. Hoover lays more stress upon the other objectionable features of the bill. He is opposed to discrimination against some veterans for the sake of helping others, and in this stand the public will be with him. He exposes the subterfuge that pretends to hold out relief to all veterans when in fact it denies relief to most of them. The public regards the bill as a political appeal to the soldier vote. In view of the discrimination against the bulk of the veterans, it is quite possible that the soldier vote will be antagonized rather than appeased by the action of Congress.

The man in the White House can strike out with terrific force when necessary. Mr. Hoover's strong statement instantly appeals to the people, who rejoice whenever a courageous President stands true to his obligations in spite of the pressure of Congress. The public feels that the Nation's interests are safe in the hands of a President who fearlessly tells the truth as he sees it, without regard to politics.

In due time the veterans of the World War will receive generous treatment. No one is trying to deprive them of what is their due, but on the contrary an extremely liberal law would be approved by the people. It is not a question of cheeseparing at the expense of the country's defenders. It is a question of fair and well-considered legislation that will accomplish the object desired, without doing injury to any veterans and without squandering public money that should go to the help of all veterans who need help.

WIMBLEDON.

With Bobby Jones on his way home carrying all the golf trophies that England had to offer, attention now centers on Wimbledon, rich in tradition, where the American racquet wielders are off to a flattering start in a determined effort to win the English tennis championships for women and men.

It appears almost certain that Helen Wills Moody will avenge Glenna Collett's defeat at golf and capture for the fourth successive time the woman's title. She is without a peer in the world.

The men's singles will be a grueling contest. The veteran "Big Bill" Tilden is America's chief hope. His victorious spring continental campaign has demonstrated that he has remarkable recuperative power. There are indications that he and his old French rival, Henri Cochet, will fight it out in the finals. In that case Cochet will rule a slight favorite.

The United States ought to win the doubles. In the youthful combinations of Lott-Doeg and Van Ryn-Allison the country has strong representation. It would not be surprising to see an all-American final.

International sport has become such a focus of world interest that in promoting friendly feeling and better understanding between nations it is now a handmaid to diplomacy.

HOPE FOR THE VIRGIN ISLANDS.

Thirteen years ago the Stars and Stripes were run up on the flagstaffs of the Virgin Islands, but the Constitution did not follow the flag. In 1920, however, the eighteenth amendment was sent down to be tacked on to the Danish colonial law, still in full force and effect. That piece of patchwork was fatal to the commerce of the islands. The distillers of rum from sugar-cane were prevented from supplying their trade, and have had mighty hard work in making anything to take the place of rum in their commerce with the outside world. One other misfortune helped to increase the distress of the rapidly dwindling population, and that was the hurricane which hit them six years ago, followed by a three-year drought.

The people of Danish West Indies were happy up to 1917. They have not been happy since then. But perhaps this thirteenth year of allegiance to the American flag may prove a lucky year. The insular affairs division of the War Department has sent the chief of the Bureau of Efficiency down to the Virgin Islands to look them over. If Herbert B. Brown can not discover some remedy for the conditions in the islands their case is hopeless, indeed. The Bureau of Efficiency has made brilliant recommendations for the reform of the judiciary system of the District of Columbia, based upon a study of the number of hours the justices sit upon the bench. The rescue of the Virgin Islands from the grip of despair should be an easy task for the Bureau of Efficiency. In times to come the ancient mariners of the isles, recounting the epoch-making apparition of Chief Brown, may chant:

I bit my arm; I sucked the blood,
And cried "An efficiency engineer!"

DARK PROSPECTS IN INDIA.

Recommendations for liberalizing the government of India are made in the second report of the Simon commission, made public this week. It is based upon the state of facts described in the first report.

The second report goes into patient detail, from which two recommendations stand out. The first proposes the substitution of a federal government in place of the present unitary form of government, and the second proposes the abolition of diarchy—the existing system under which authority is divided between British and Indian officials, with the English having always the last word. In addition, the commission recommends that certain reserved and transferred powers, notably control over the police, shall be placed in the hands of native officials. But—and here lies the provision that promises to further embitter the natives—Great Britain is to retain her army in India, and British officials would be given broad authority to proclaim emergency situations, whereupon all power and authority would automatically revert to the crown.

The Simon commission outlines a safe form of liberalization that will be regarded everywhere save in India as calculated to advance the cause of nationalism without at the same time risking the subjection of the natives to exploitation and destruction by their politicians or by another people. The report is submitted "in the hope that it may furnish materials and suggest a plan whereby Indian constitutional reconstruction may be peacefully and surely promoted." But with Gandhi preaching sedition; with the agents of Moscow fomenting trouble throughout the land, and with nationalist sentiment fanned to a fever heat, it does not seem probable that the report will lead to an amicable reform. One of the adverse factors in the present situation is the unprecedented fall in the price of silver, which is raising the cost of food in India to a level beyond the means of the people.

THE VOLLBEHR COLLECTION.

The Senate yesterday passed the Collins-Bingham bill to acquire for the Library of Congress the remarkable collection of "first printed" books brought together by Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, of Berlin. The cost of the 3,000 volumes will be $1,500,000. They are easily worth twice that sum. Their money value, in fact, is difficult to estimate, as three of the volumes—namely, the 3-volume vellum edition of the Gutenberg Bible—are unique and beyond all price. They are regarded by bibliophiles as the rarest and choicest books in the world. It is gratifying to know that these and other specimens of the earliest printed books will be safely preserved in the Library of Congress, in the ownership of the United States.

MOVIE ADVERTISING.

When, last April, the motion picture producers and distributors of America announced the adoption of a new code of ethics designed to purge the movies of objectionable practices, the public reserved judgment. It was recognized that the movies themselves, while oftentimes vulgar and infantile, were not generally objectionable, and that the provisions of the so-called new code outlawed practices that had already been discarded by reputable producers. It was observed at the time that the movie industry was subject to indictment principally with respect to the fashion in which it elected to advertise and otherwise exploit its products. More often than not the movie that was advertised as risque in newspapers and in polychromatic posters mounted in the lobbies of theaters was found to be less wicked than it was painted. The producers and distributors now announce the adoption of a code of ethics for advertising and publicity directors, the principal provision of which is subscription to the general code of ethics "based on truth, honesty and integrity." The nineteen leading organizations subscribing to the code pledge that good taste shall henceforth be the guiding rule in motion picture advertising, that illustrations and text shall faithfully represent the pictures themselves, that false and misleading statements shall not be employed directly or implied by type arrangements or by distorted quotations, and that nudity "with meretricious purpose" and salacious posters shall not be used.

Adoption of the code is a wholesome step forward. It remains to be demonstrated, however, whether motion picture advertising and publicity directors will live up to its provisions.

A NEW AUDITORIUM.

Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, associate director of the George Washington bicentennial celebration, just around the corner in 1932, has emphasized the fact that the one facility Washington lacks to make it the outstanding convention city of the United States is an auditorium with a seating capacity of at least 15,000. Speaking of this, Mr. Bloom said:

> In the National Capital we have the regrettable situation of a city of beauty and attractiveness superior to any other capital in the world, and yet lacking the essential qualification of a meeting place for the Nation's people. Certainly no other city in America has more natural attractions of all kinds than has this city. In one respect alone does this city fall short in its advantages as a gathering place for great organizations, conferences and assemblies. The largest auditorium in Washington seats 6,180 people. I find cities with approximately half the population of Washington having much larger auditoriums. Figures prove conclusively that Washington, the city which should rightfully have the biggest auditorium in the United States, is sadly deficient.

The Byrd celebration last Friday, when thousands who wanted to see and honor the explorer, were unable to get tickets, is a pat illustration of the soundness of Representative Bloom's views.

It is not within the province of the Federal Government to provide the needed auditorium. It would appear, however, to have the possibilities of being a good paying private enterprise. The civic bodies of Washington should give this question careful study and do all in their power to aid in providing the city with an auditorium that will accommodate assemblies on a national scale.

A BALANCED BUILDING PROGRAM

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

The weakest feature of our naval administration has always been the program for the construction of ships. A study of the Revolutionary War makes evident the tremendous handicap which such an elementary defect imposes upon a naval force in war. When the United States Navy was established it was built upon a backbone of large frigates. President Jefferson changed this wise policy and placed his chief reliance upon hundreds of small and useless gunboats. The War of 1812 saw the pendulum swing backward toward the big ships. Soon after the war ended we commissioned our first ship of the line.

If there were time to trace our naval construction programs through the remainder of the nineteenth century they would be found to be equally erratic and unsystematic. One quite outstanding fact is that most of our progress in naval construction has been accomplished by civilians. To them are we indebted for the fine Constitution types of frigates, the Mississippi River gunboats, the Monitor, and in later years the submarine and the seaplane.

Our development in the twentieth century has left much to be desired. In battleships alone have we maintained a continuous and consistent program. Our progress in this type has been excellent. In sharp contrast to this efficiency is the inadequacy and ineffectiveness of our past programs for cruiser construction. For fifteen years we did not build a single cruiser. At the time of the Washington conference we did not possess one effective vessel of this type. We have never built a battle cruiser—a type acknowledged to be a great value by Germans, British and Japanese. Today, on the other hand, we have gone to the other extreme and the cruiser holds the center of the stage. We were late in getting interested in destroyers, but for a few years prior to the war made excellent progress in their development. During the war enormous numbers were built. In the last ten years we have not laid down a single boat.

We have never built a single destroyer leader, though the British, Japanese, French and Italians have specialized in these large destroyers. Our prewar submarine program was quite consistent, but we were greatly handicapped by the failure to develop suitable engines. During the war we laid down a large program of submarines. They were designed and laid down in such haste that many difficulties have developed in operation. We have just commenced the seventh submarine of postwar design, while Japan has completed her thirty-first. Our first aircraft carrier was a converted collier of low speed. Then we tried to build two great battle cruiser hulls into carriers. Now we are endeavoring to find money to build a small, fast carrier of 13,800 tons.

It is quite evident that America, which prides herself on business ability and system, has been anything but businesslike and systematic in the construction of her Navy. This has led to several grave disadvantages:

1. We have never had a properly balanced fleet. Even today we have no battle cruisers and destroyer leaders. We are deficient in cruisers and carriers. Our destroyers and submarines, though formidable in numbers, are almost obsolete in design. We have no postwar destroyers and only four submarines.

2. Unless there is continuous building of each type it is impossible to make proper progress in design and methods of construction. When the construction of essential types is suspended for periods of ten and fifteen years and then commenced at full speed it is impossible to get the best ships.

3. Navy yards and private companies can not do effective and economical work when there are such wide fluctuations in the naval tonnage under construction. The lull in shipbuilding after the Washington conference virtually ruined our shipbuilding industry—one of the Nation's greatest war assets.

4. The Navy has been forced to use vessels which have long outlived their usefulness for war and are uneconomical to maintain during peace. The present flagship of the Asiatic fleet, the Pittsburgh, would be a veritable deathtrap in battle. The ship which flew Sampson's flag in the Santiago battle 32 years ago is still in commission. Quite a proportion of our very limited personnel is being used to maintain vessels which would be useless in war.

It would serve no good purpose to try to show the reasons for this unsystematic and inefficient method of building a Navy. It results primarily from the checks and balances of our system of government. While these may have their advantages in other ways, they do not contribute to a consistent and continuous program of naval construction.

The greatest advantage of the London treaty is that it forms a basis for a logical and systematic naval building program. If the legislative and executive branches of our Government could adopt such a program for ten years, with provision for minor changes, it would contribute more than any other one thing to our naval efficiency. The advantages to the Navy of having such a program to stabilize its handling of the personnel, navy yards and other administrative questions would be incalculable. The benefit to the private interests involved would be equally great. The announcement of an intention to formulate such a program of naval construction would be the most powerful argument for the ratification of the London treaty.

JUST FOLKS

SUCCESS.

The man stood at his post all day
And every week of all the year,
And some there were who went to play,
Whose merry laughter he could hear.

Some rode him by in costly cars,
Some took the ships that cross the sea,
But duty's stern, forbidding bars
It seemed would never let him free.

And yet always through gloom and smoke,
And pain and hurt and tedious care
And dust that often made him choke
He saw a vision wondrous fair.

He saw his children schooled in truth
As bravely at his post he stood,
He saw them happy in their youth
And grown to men and women good.

And later when his strength was spent
And all the dreary years had flown,
To him great happiness was sent.
In their success he found his own.

You Needn't Fear a Fall If You Don't Try to Light Higher Than You Can Roost.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a lady asked Dr. Johnson why he had defined "pastern" incorrectly in his new dictionary, he answered frankly: "Ignorance, madam."

Everybody is ignorant.

As one of America's best-informed men expressed it recently: "We don't know one-tenth of one per cent about anything."

Yet mankind's gathered store of knowledge, small as it is in relation to the whole body of undiscovered truth, is yet so vast in the aggregate that no one man can hope to absorb the whole of it in one short life.

The most ambitious of students must be content to learn a little about many things and a great deal about a few things.

It is no disgrace to be ignorant.

No layman, for example, suffers disgrace or feels ashamed if he is ignorant of legal precedents, the symptoms of rare diseases, or the laws that govern the construction of an airplane's wings.

Such knowledge is required only by the specialist.

The ignorance of which ordinary people are ashamed is ignorance concerning ordinary matters—their lack of the knowledge that is supposed to be and commonly is possessed by civilized people ordinarily well-informed.

It is this type of ignorance that people attempt to conceal.

Because they are ashamed, they pretend to know more than they do; and thus they invite one of the most humiliating of human experiences—that of having their ignorance exposed in the presence of people they tried to fool.

It is a cruel blow to vanity—the just abasement of one that exalts himself to win renown by trickery.

Almost everybody suffers such humiliation at some time in life, and yet there is a simple way to avoid it—a way that requires bedrock humility and yet gives assurance of being invariably right and beyond reach or fear of criticism.

Avoid error by the simple process of keeping still unless you know and know you know.

It is a great temptation to hazard a guess rather than confess ignorance when asked a question—to assert as fact, in the heat of argument, the thing you wish to believe true—but at best your gain is temporary and trivial, and exposure and humiliation are certain in the end.

Whether writing or speaking, you can limit yourself to statements you know are true and leave unsaid the many things you merely believe and have not verified.

Do that; and though the heathen rage and the critics dispute and the wise ones howl in derision, you may have the satisfaction of knowing you are always right.

You can await the check without dread if you count your change before ordering your dinner.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HEATING BY RADIO.

The latest news is that a radio tube may soon replace the furnace, parlor stove and kitchen range for heating purposes. Radio is seen as the heating plant of the future. It will ultimately give you entertainment programs, political speeches, news events, television pictures, a hot fire and plain home cooking.

• • • •

Whole families will be able to keep comfortable by twisting a dial, and when a man suddenly feels a little chilled while sitting in a draft during a blizzard he will know that something is wrong with his wave length or B batteries.

• • • •

"Fever tubes" will do the business. The rooms will be equipped with condenser plates between the walls. Heat waves will be projected through the human body, inducing a fever which will make a tenant asleep in a snowbank think he is having a nap in a Turkish bath.

• • • •

If you're cold you just turn the dial until you get a rush of blood to the head. If the gale is howling outside your window and you feel about to develop a fever, you will know that your radio heating system is all right.

• • • •

But if you still feel chilly, you rap on the set for the Radio Corporation to send up more heat.

• • • •

You may figuratively kindle the fire with Amos 'n' Andy, build it up with the Goldbergs, fan it with the ginger ale hour and keep it going with symphony orchestras, Literary Digest programs and political addresses.

• • • •

What will the American of tomorrow do for his exercise? Nothing used to keep him more active than the care of the old-fashioned coal-burning furnace. When the chill winds blew, science stretched forth its hand and offered but one instrument — a good old-fashioned shovel. When the blizzard howled without, you knew the occasion called for more coal, not for more radio appliances.

• • • •

If the fire went out during the night you had to get up in the cold and put in a laborious hour dumping the ashes and building a new blaze. It was nothing that could be done with an outside aerial and a set of dry batteries. Keeping the house comfortable during the winter was an effort, not an amusement. If you had difficulty heating the home you notified the coal man, not an electrician.

• • • •

But soft days are ahead. Metallic walls with condenser plates are to take the place of the full coal bin and the ax, shovel, stoker and grate handle are to be combined into an artistic dial combining the hottest features of each.

• • • •

The new invention heats the body instead of the room. Every person becomes an individual range. But what the average man will want to know is whether, using the fever tubes, he can percolate the coffee on his shoulders and bake a potato in the hollow of his hand?

WELL, IT'S ALL RIGHT WITH US.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Sandboy Gives New Players the Once Over and Finds Them Good.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After having seen the Washington ball club in action several times since their return last Thursday, I would like to comment upon the new players acquired through trades. First, I want to say that Garland Braxton pitched a beautiful game for Chicago the other day, and I feel that Johnson should have started Braxton in some games instead of keeping him on the bench most of the time and calling on him for relief work only.

Shires is a very good substitute at first base for Judge. At times he deserves to be called "The Great," as some of the pick-ups he makes are fine. He is also a pretty good hitter. Shires is not as graceful as Judge when throwing the ball, nor does he take his foot away from the bag as rapidly as Judge does.

Harris can certainly hit the ball, though his fielding can not compare with Rice's. In the second game with Cleveland Monday, there was one ball hit out to the right field fence which I think Rice would have caught, but Harris did not try to get it.

Manush plays a strong defensive game and covers the left field territory in fine style. Though he is large, he is very fast on his feet. When at the bat Manush tries to get a hit, either a single by bunting, or a double when he really lays on the ball. Goslin's one weak point was trying to get a home run every time he came to bat. At least from the way he swung at the ball, the fans got the impression that he was trying for a home run and many times during these attempts he struck out.

Alvin Crowder or "the General," is a seasoned and fully developed pitcher. He has pitched two nice games for the Nationals since his acquisition. The four men who were traded to Washington seem to be a help to the team, and unless they go into a slump the Nationals will probably stage a good fight for first place in the American League.

ALFRED SANDBOY.

The Dutch Have Taken Holland, and the Wets Have Captured New Jersey, But That Doesn't Mean Maine or Kansas.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The nomination of Mr. Morrow on a wet platform in the recent primary for United States senator in New Jersey is just another case of the Dutch taking Holland. New Jersey is an unashamed wet State, so has very naturally nominated a wet to run for senator in both major parties. But the wets have jubilated over Morrow's nomination as if it had occurred in Maine or Kansas.

But even as a New Jersey primary there is something to be read between the lines as we scan the returns. The large plurality received by Mr. Morrow did not all come like a tidal wave from the wet Atlantic Ocean. He carried dry counties as well as wet ones. This goes to show that, with prohibition intrenched in the Federal Constitution as it is, many thousands of drys voted for him believing that as a senator he would do a service to his State and his country in constructive statesmanship that would far outweigh any possible harm he could do to prohibition. He was not aggressively wet in his primary campaign.

It is reported in the press that Mr. Morrow will not be so in his campaign for election, nor in the Senate if elected. In fact, certain newspapers seem to be trying to save him from his wet friends. He will doubtless be elected in November, and no matter how many times he may be reelected the eighteenth amendment will still be in the Federal Constitution, as impregnable as Gibraltar.

COLUMBUS BRADFORD.

BEAUTIFYING THE CAPITAL.

The greatest judicial tribunal in the world, the United States Supreme Court, observes the Cincinnati Enquirer, is to have a new and appropriate home, one worthy of its dignity and traditions of noble service.

This new national temple of justice will rise in stateliness and impressive architectural majesty in harmony with the great court's broad tolerance, its classic ritual. It will be complete in three years at a cost of nearly ten millions of dollars.

The distinction of the court deserves such housing. It will be classic in design, for such architectural beauty and dignity spells almost proportional perfection, speaks with the tongue of genius and whatever may be said of its "inappropriateness" in American landscaper, it will continue to dominate the character of public building at the Nation's Capital. The Corinthian column, the soaring pinnacle, the noble simplicity of Greek art will continue to distinguish Washington as one of the most beautiful capitals in the world.

This building of adequate dimensions and artistic appeal, its architect has said, was designed to "last for all time." Its tranquillity, simplicity and permanence should appeal to generations yet to come, generations which have been cultured in the shadow of cloud-challenging skyscrapers devoted to the needs and desires of commerce and business. It will stand virginal in the complex confusions of an age whose laws it will interpret with dispassionate integrity.

The New Diplomacy.

Lorain Journal: We have learned much in the way of diplomacy by this recent trip abroad of these Gold Star mothers. Why wouldn't it be a fine good-will builder with the people of Europe to select men of various trades but no overhead charges, send them abroad every once in a while and even in part, or wholly, at Government expense?

20 ROTARIANS CITE NATIONS' PROGRESS

Foreign Delegates Point Out Achievements at Chicago Jubilee,

GOOD WILL EXPRESSED

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—International good will became a Rotary byword today as twenty delegates from as many countries expressed a cross section of world opinion on human progress.

The delegates, attending with 17,000 others the silver jubilee convention of Rotary International, an association of luncheon clubs with the motto, "Service Above Self," were asked to state two things—the most interesting event in their countries last year and the most important event suggesting human progress.

Some of the answers were:

L. C. Kingston, London, England,—The determination of all classes under the leadership of Premier Ramsay MacDonald to establish good will between Great Britain and the nations of the world. The building of 2,000,000 homes and renting them for about $2 a week to the working class.

Charles Gassin Jourda, Nice, France,—The proposal of M. Briand for a federation of European states with the full agreement of the United States of America. The better understanding now existing between the nations of the world.

Everett W. Frazer, Tokyo, Japan,—The celebration of the recovery of Japan from the most terrible disaster of 1923. The spread of education since the Russian-Japanese War and universal male suffrage.

J. W. Warner Brown, Tientsin, China,—The progress of the Nationalist government toward the internal security of China.

M. L. E. Steinmann, Brussels, Belgium,—The marriage of Princess Marie-Jose, of Belgium, to Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, which, with the marriage of the Crown Prince of Belgium to Princess Astrid, of Sweden, forms an important alliance for peace between three European nations.

The first business before the convention tomorrow will be nomination of oficers and directors.

HOOVER'S SIGNATURE SEEN FOR RIVER BILL

$116,286,027. The Senate, however, added projects that increased the total by $28,596,875.

The construction is to be spread over a period of years ranging from one to fifteen. Approximately $30,000,000 of the $60,000,000 carried in the annual War Department supply bill will become available July 1 for use on these projects. The remainder is to go toward Mississippi flood control work.

In both the House and Senate vigorous contests were waged against the provision for the Government to take over and operate the Erie and Oswego Canal in New York State and the Illinois waterway connecting the Great Lakes with the gulf by the Mississippi River, but they were finally included.

The Senate approved the measure Saturday. It went to conference yesterday, but within three hours the conferees had agreed and the bill was finally approved. It probably will reach the President late today.

The measure authorizes surveys on more than 150 streams.

Several vast projects ultimately to cost many millions were adopted in the measure. However, the authorization of expenditures of some were restricted to the immediate demand.

Among such projects was $98,000,000 for a 9-foot channel for the upper Mississippi from the mouth of the Illinois River to St. Paul and Minneapolis, with $7,500,000 to be made available under the measure; $48,000,000 for the upper Missouri, with $15,000,000, to become available in the next three years, for a 6-foot channel between Kansas City, Mo., and Sioux City, Iowa; and a $75,000,000 Tennessee River project, with $5,000,000 for work to be undertaken on a 9-foot channel from its mouth to Knoxville River.

Authority for the expenditure of $29,000,000 for deepening the connecting channel on the Great Lakes and work on the St. Lawrence waterway was included along with a $9,000,000 project for flood control at Lake Okeechobee, Florida.

In taking over the Illinois waterway, the bill specified not more than $7,500,000 be expended to complete the project begun by the State of Illinois and estimated to cost nearly $40,000,000. The Secretary of War is to have a study made of the diversion of water from the Great Lakes through the Illinois waterway for navigation purposes.

It was specifically set out that the Erie and Oswego Canals shall be retained as barge canals and that it is not the intention of Congress to permit them to interfere with the improvement of the St. Lawrence waterway. The sum of $2,500,000 is authorized for maintenance and operation.

White House Wine Glasses Stored Away Permanently

Commercial Packers Count Goblets, 1,800 of Them, Place Them in Barrels and Nail Down Lids, to Aid Enumeration.

(Associated Press.)

Glasses that tossed off toasts to Presidents long past went into storage this week.

Commercial packers counted the White House wine glasses—1,800—padded them carefully, placed them in barrels, nailed down the lids.

The reason—To make possible a count of the wine glasses by lots, instead of individually, in the annual June inventory of White House property.

Every article, however large, however small, in the White House has to be enumerated each year. Not even a broken dish can be disposed of or destroyed except under supervision of Col. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings.

Thus it was that ten years after prohibition found the historic wine glasses still occupying White House shelves, and having to be counted, goblet by goblet, each June.

Then some one decided these brittle hang overs of bygone hospitalities could be counted barrel by barrel.

Slush House Fund Group Authorized

Longworth to Name Body to Investigate Expenses of Coming Elections.

(Associated Press.)

In line with a policy adopted four years ago, the House yesterday authorized its Speaker to name a special committee to investigate campaign expenditures of candidates for House seats in the coming elections. A resolution authorizing Speaker Longworth to appoint the committee was approved unanimously.

Until four years ago, campaign investigating committees were appointed only after charges of irregularities were made in various contests for the seats.

As a result of numerous complaints in elections, the House adopted the policy of authorizing such a committee before adjournment of the long session in order that it might begin inquiries immediately after charges were filed. Speaker Longworth expects to appoint the committee this week.

The base, or starting, pay of the rookie policeman or fireman is boosted from $1,800 to $1,900 a year, and the top pay of private is increased from $2,100 to $2,400 a year. In order to receive this top pay, however, a private must have served seven years.

In its final form the bill represents a compromise between those who wanted a more liberal bill and Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, who held the measure up until certain of his amendments were accepted.

Mr. Simmons, however, gave in on only one important amendment, that continuing retirement pay on the present salary rates. As it goes to the White House, the bill provides that the retirement pay shall be based on new salary rates.

CRAMTON ATTACKS PARK BILL ACTION

Parkway Item Would Not Add to City's Burdens, Says House Member.

COMMITTEE KILLS PLAN

Commenting on the action of the Senate appropriations committee in eliminating the $1,000,000 item for the George Washington Memorial Parkway, Representative Louis Cramton (Republican), of Michigan, declared in the House yesterday that his park bill authorizing the parkway did not add one penny to the financial obligations of the District.

The Michigan representative made the explanation because of reports that the Senate committee eliminated the item on the ground that the District should not be required to spend any more for parks unless the Federal Government contributes more toward its support.

Mr. Cramton explained that his bill provided for a $16,000,000 loan to the District for the purchase of park lands, this to be paid back without interest at the rate of $1,000,000 a year. The District, he pointed out, already is spending $1,000,000 a year for parks.

The memorial parkway, he said, will be paid for by the Federal Government and the States of Maryland and Virginia. The extension of Rock Creek Park and Anacostia Park into Maryland, he said, will be financed by the Federal Government and Maryland.

The District, he explained, would pay only for parks within its borders, although it will benefit from those outside.

Death Rate Increases, Births Decline in City

Washington shared alike with both Virginia and Maryland in an increased death rate and a decreased birth rate in 1929 over 1928 in figures made public yesterday by the division of vital statistics of the Census Bureau. The infant mortality rate of the District and the two neighboring States also took spurts upward.

There were 8,894 birth here last year, a decline of 41 from the previous year, while deaths increased 189 during the year. The infant mortality rate jumped from 65.1 per 1,000 in 1928 to 70.7 in 1929. In Virginia, figures showed a decline of 2,539 births and an increase of 1,051 deaths, while the infant mortality rate went from 75.9 to 78.8 per 1,000. In Maryland there were 1,914 less births and 159 more deaths. The infant mortality rate spurted from 79.6 to 80 per 1,000.

A small string orchestra played the wedding music. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a French model of white flat crepe with a tulle veil. Mrs. Thorvald Hammer, of Branford, Conn., formerly Miss Lucy Taylor, of Washington, was the matron of honor; Miss Rebecca Eaton, sister of the bridegroom, was among the guests from New York and served as bridesmaid. Their frocks were of apricot lace and tulle and with them they wore large straw hats of matching shade. They carried talisman roses and delphinium.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

Timely Garden Hints.

THIS is the time when roses are so likely to show signs of mildew, so get out your blower gun and cover the foliage of each bush and vine with powdered sulphur. Peonies at this time will be benefited by an application of liquid manure or bonemeal.

Cultivate your garden during the next six weeks to keep down weeds and retain soil moisture. Stake your dahlias and other tall plants before they blow over. Cut your columbine back so as to induce a second crop of flowers and keep your coreopsis cut closely, so as to tempt more flowers to open.

Pick your sweet peas regularly, for if you permit seed pods to form the plants are sure to stop producing. Keep them well watered; if the vines begin to turn yellow they will soon cease to set buds.

This is a good time to pinch out the shoots of evergreens in order to increase bushiness. Pinch the terminal ends from the alternanthera every time you cut the grass. It is also well at this time to begin pinching back your coleuses and continue pinching back hardy chrysanthemums.

Remember, from now until Labor Day, to water all young trees. Also water your shrubbery at least twice each week. Bushes that were set out this year will require water at least there times a week. This is the time to prune most of the spring-flowering shrubbery. Also prune your climbing roses as they pass out of bloom.

In transplanting annuals at this time, take care that their roots never dry. It is best to puddle them in a pail of mud before planting. Water your pansies frequently at this season, and if they cease to produce buds try cutting them back.

It will soon be time to begin collecting seed from your perennials. Allow them to dry for about fifteen days before planting. Plant the last of your gladioli bulbs as soon as possible. If you wait much longer frost will overtake them before they have developed their flowers.

The first week in July is a good time to take cuttings from hardy pinks. Cut these with a heel and place them in damp sand in a shady place.

Keep up the good work of cultivation. This is especially necessary in the case of dahlias and gladioli. It will not only keep down weeds, but will aid in the conservation of moisture.

Dare Interprets the Mode

The huge bow in back and the modernistic petals are the unusual features of this charming pink faille evening frock. (Courtesy of Tollman, Paris.)

Paris, June 24.

HAVE you noticed how many necks there are on the market these days? No, I don't believe the necks of lovely ladies have suddenly become longer or more pronounced or anything like that, but I do believe that they have become more see-able.

Maybe the cape did it, because you don't wear a fox fur with a cape of course. Maybe the growing out bob had something to do with it, who knows? Or rather, as I more truly suspect, maybe the fascinating neckwear that is really so chic and gives so much room for imagination and individuality, something that the fox fur that often covered a multitude of artistic sins never did, is responsible.

Whatever it is, it is certain that many a tailleur and coat collar these days is completely missing. Either a little cape starts around the collarless neck, or if there is no cape the revers or lapels of the coat start in the front only.

And oh the smartness of neckwear, of scarfs and blouses, of bows and what-nots, not at all fussy you understand, all tied with a calculating but set nonchalance! A scarf that matches a hat or a bag, or a scarf that matches simply one's gloves; or lingerie touches that one expects to see only on dresses and blouses, appear, of all things, on coats.

* * * *

Pink and petals, faille and a bow, strass straps and Tollman—I'm talking about the lovely evening gown I have sketched for you today. It incorporates all the most flattering lines that a dress can have to show off to best advantage the feminine figure. The bow in the back is an eccentricity, of course, but a charming one, and the strass straps are the only bit of ornament. Would you wear long black gloves with this just to prove your sophistication? I would!

* * * *

Have you a tailored suit? Wouldn't you like to make a delightful new blouse for it? It ties a certain way in the front, fits with shirring over the hips—oh, it's slick! And then, as though that weren't good enough all for one leaflet, we tell you how to make a skirt that matches this blouse, so that you may turn the blouse of your tailored suit into a smart summer dress when you go away for that week-end for which you don't want to have loads and loads of clothes hanging in your closet. Better just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post on general principles, because I'd like to bet you a Paris hat that you're going to find this so-o-o-o useful and needed once you see the plot.

* * * *

In the accessory world of handbags, alligator skin—or "cro-codeel" as the Parisienne says to the vendeuse—is very, very, very much in favor, and in all shades, including blue and red, and black. The dark brown is the most natural looking and perhaps the most generally seen. Shapes vary from pouch to envelope to traveling bag forms.

You'll be interested in each edition of the weekly Dare fashion letter. It's in The Washington Post every Sunday.

Western Union Group To Hold Outing Tonight

An outing will be held tonight at Great Falls, Va., by the Washington local of the Association of Western Union employes, with invited guests to include employes in Capital business houses.

Goofus Gossip

In fish circles it's said the Goofus Flounder
In his day was quite a rounder.
He used to stand, so they tell me,
Against a bar in the Goofus Sea
And drink his fill of this and that,
Because of which he's fallen flat;
Yet other fishes can't see why
They should vote the ocean dry!

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CHILDREN AND SPASMOPHILIA.

A VERY considerable proportion of the children belong in the group which physicians say have spasmophilia. By this they do not mean that the children have a definite disease, for spasmophilia is not in that class. It is a certain makeup, a certain way of reacting, rather than a disease. If the child is sick his illness is likely to take a certain turn; if he is well he has certain peculiarities. The children of this type are nervous and jumpy. They are generally regarded as frail. They catch cold easily. In fact, they catch whatever there is to catch.

Some of them are dirt eaters. Most of them have poor appetites, or are fitful eaters. Some have night terrors. When they get sick they are liable to develop spasmodic symptoms of some kind, possibly general muscular convulsions; possibly a spasmodic disorder of some organ. They are the croupy children, and this is the best illustration we can use. When they get a cold on the chest the cough tightens up at night and attacks of spasmodic croup are liable to develop. If it is not croup then it may be bronchial asthma.

This spasmodic diathesis may be responsible for the persistent vomiting of infancy. This may go to the point of a spasmodic stricture of the stomach, for which an operation may be required. Back of this diathesis there lies a lime deficiency. The treatment consists in getting lime into the system. If this can be done the diathesis proposition takes care of itself, and the croups, night terrors, dirt eating and such do not call for special attention.

Life in the sunlight and open air is about the best remedial procedure. To paint the skin with a good tan may be the only treatment required. Of the medicines which help out the work of sunlight and fresh air, cod liver oil and viosterol are good. Iron is sometimes of service. Physicians frequently use some preparation of phosphate of lime. A quiet life, freedom from excitement and from overexertion are valuable also. They are a part of the treatment which almost equals sunlight and air in beneficial effects.

DEPRESSION IN CHEST.

Mrs. E. L. H. writes: My 15-year-old son has grown very rapidly the last two years and, through improper sitting posture, also probably through the strain of rapid growth, has developed a very flat chest and also a deep hollow about the center of the chest. Will you please give advice and corrective exercises? He has an exerciser. If used, do you think it will do any good?

REPLY.

Your son is right in the midst of a rapid growing age. He will slow up within a year.

A deep hollow in the middle of his chest is not a direct effect of rapid growth. That is probably the result of a childhood rickets, or an attack of pleurisy, pericarditis, or a mediastinal infection of some sort, probably in childhood. No exercise will fill that depression.

He can improve the shape of his trunk considerably by exercise, provided he is persistent. Unless he is bullheaded there is not much use starting. Using an exerciser will help. Rowing, swimming, rope climbing, work on the bars, wrestling and pitching hay are good.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF June 25th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:40 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 7:45 a. m., and 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Your nervous energies will be stimulated on this date, and you will be almost dizzily mentally active. You will be apt to change your mind many times, and the plans of the morning will be of quite a different color by the afternoon.

The child born on this June 25th will be quick-witted, energetic, courageous, and sunny-tempered. It will be inclined to shift its worries and will not be too keen about responsibilities. It will be efficiently able, but will be slack at times.

Fate does not hand June 25th people an easy, "bed of roses," existence. You are destined to taste the sacrament of suffering, but your soul will not be twisted, warped or soured by it. Your home fires will not be kept burning while you sit down comfortably beside them. You must work, if you achieve—sacrifice, too.

You have a strong, resolute character, and a goodly amount of pluck, and you are not going to be bowled over by circumstances without a red-blooded fight. You show enterprise, coolness and resourcefulness, and you have a delicate and sure touch. Doctors, engineers, and artists are made of your kind of clay. Your intelligence is of a very high degree, and as you are ambitious, you will probably not waste your natural gifts.

You are extremely charitable, charming to everybody, and have pleasant things to say about other people. If you cannot say nice things, you stay mum. The lure of wood and field will never be killed by the rush and strain of present day living, and your "retreats" will be spent worshiping with nature's gods. You are homely in your habits, and strongly attached to your family. You sympathize with the joys and sorrows of your friends, and you are a glorious companion. Care of diet is necessary for your health's sake.

Successful people born June 25:
1—Edward Holyoke, Congregational clergyman and president of Harvard.
2—Olive Thorn Miller, author.
3—Charles T. Yerkes, capitalist.
4—Ralph Waldo Emerson, essayist.
5—William Alfred Quayle, bishop.
6—McClintock Young, inventor.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

TOMORROW evening in the garden of the Arts Club, the Arts Club Players are going to present "Antigone," which is, by the by, just the place to present a play at this time of year—the prosecenium arch the sky and the spotlight the moon.

* * * *

SO far as the new season of 1930-1931 is concerned, Mr. David Belasco has tossed his helmet into the ring. His first production for the new season is now under way, rehearsals having started yesterday for "Dancing Partner," a collaborative effort of Alexander Engel and Alfred Grunwald, adapted by Frederick and Fanny Hatton—the Hattons, no less. Featured in the cast will be Lynne Overman, Irene Purcell, Henry Stephenson and Charlotte Granville.

* * * *

ANOTHER producer hot on the trail of a New York success for the new season is Arthur Hopkins—the man who has given many beautiful works to the American theater, one of these being "Machinal." Well, Mr. Hopkins is now busy rehearsing Benn Levy's "Mrs. Moonlight." Sir Guy Standing, seen here last with Jane Cowl, will have a leading role, as will Elizabeth Barrett. Also among those present in the cast will be Haidee Wright, that grand old lady of the stage.

BOUND East from Hollywood, where he made a talking picture out of his great musical comedy, "Whoopee," is the Old Master of girly-girl shows, M. Flo. Ziegfeld. He is racing back to Broadway, and to the theater that bears his name, for the sole purpose of glorifying a lot of American girls in a new musical that hasn't a girl's name anywhere in sight—"Tom, Dick and Harry." The stars of this show will be three in number; the Dancing Estairs—Fred and Adele—and that dancer of dancers, Miss Marilyn Miller.

WHEN Keith's was flourishing here as a vaudeville house, with Roland Robbins as manager, there were two so-called "nut comedians," who always "knocked 'em out of their seats and into the aisle," as the saying goes. They were, and still are, Shaw and Lee. Perhaps they will be remembered by this bit of tomfoolery: "What is your father's name?" asks Shaw. Lee ponders a while. "That's funny," he says, "I can't think of it—and it's right on the tip of my tongue." To help him, Shaw goes down the alphabet; but no letter suggests the old man's name. They get into the combinations, landing at Ch. "I have it," shouts Lee, "It's Choseph." Well, Shaw and Lee have joined the new "Artists and Models" show, now starting the summer season in New York.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Kitchen-Minded Wives"

WHEN a woman tells me that her husband goes out or goes to sleep the moment she starts to talk to him, I know exactly what she starts to talk about. And her husband knew exactly what she would start to talk about, and knew it long before she started, for husbands study their wives far more closely than those unsuspecting ladies ever dream. To prove it, one of several hundred letters is herewith offered with the hope that the wife described and all of like pattern may take warning.

Dear Madam:

I am a man well below average intelligence. I say this not in jest, but seriously, for I chose the wrong profession, married the wrong woman, bought the wrong house, and in every possible way have done the wrong thing ever since I have been responsible for my own acts. I lack judgment, business ability, and even sound sense. Nevertheless I expect a little more by way of conversation in an adult than bald statements regarding inanimate objects, such as stoves, dishes, refrigerators and food.

For more than 12 years the only subjects I have ever heard discussed in my home were subjects that originated in or near the kitchen. Do you suppose it would do any good to sell the house and move to a hotel? I am asking in all seriousness, as my wife in reading one of your articles one evening announced that you lived at a hotel and for once seemed a bit interested. Would it improve her any? Or would she just sit around telling the other women about our house, stove, ice man, butcher, &c.?

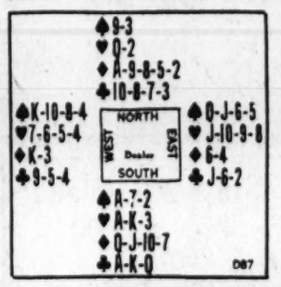
Even the children get bored and they are only 10 and 12 years old. But their interests are quite cosmopolitan compared with their mother's. They discuss Lindbergh, eclipses, radio and tennis, while their mother awaits an opportunity to mention that the cake at Mrs. Jones' tea was tougher than the last time. When I get up and walk out of the house I am called inhuman. Which is the more inhuman, the wife who never opens a book and bores a tired man with reports on kitchen activities or the man who bends every effort to make an up-to-date home, and then is forced to keep away from that home to save his reason? Answer that one. "THE MAN."

If you are not a housekeeper and have been forced to listen to the patter of the kitchen-minded, you will know how near this man is to the breaking point. If on the other hand you are kitchen-minded you will think he is just one more old brute. Everything on earth depends upon the point of view! However, I believe a few months at a hotel might broaden the lady's horizon, and suggest renting the house and trying the experiment.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinion and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?



With the above hand the Auction bidding would be One No Trump by South, followed by three passes. South's Contract bid would be three No Trumps, which also would obtain the contract

When the hand was played, West led the Four of Spades. South, with the Ace and two other Spades and with no stopper of the suit in dummy, held up until the third round of Spades. He then led his Queen of Diamonds and made the remaining tricks without difficulty, taking five-odd.

Could you have made more?

The Correct Play.

When playing the first trick the Declarer should have noted that he was sure to take one Spade, three Hearts, one Diamond and three Clubs. Four Clubs could be taken provided the adverse Jack should be only singly or doubly guarded, and five Diamond tricks could be taken if the King were held by the West hand. So there was a possibility of taking thirteen tricks. However, it would probably be necessary to risk the Diamond finesse, and it was an even chance that it would lose; if it did, Declarer would be better off if East's Spades had been exhausted. The hold-up would therefore seem to be advantageous (it does not pay to jeopardize a game in trying for a slam), if it could accomplish its purpose; but West's lead of the Four of Spades, with the Trey in dummy and the Deuce in closed hand, showed the Declarer that the eight adverse Spades were evenly divided and, as East had four, there was no point with three in trying to exhaust a hand with one more of the suit. As the game was assured (the adversaries could only make three Spades), even if the Diamond finesse lost, and thirteen tricks might be made if South win the first tricks, it is evident that the Ace of Spades should be played immediately.

BEEF CROQUETTES.

(Bureau of Animal Industry.)

Two cups of ground lean cooked beef, one cup of mashed potato, three tablespoons gravy or stock, one tablespoon onion juice, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one tablespoon butter, tabasco sauce as desired, salt, pepper, dry grated sifted bread crumbs, one egg beaten with a teaspoon of water, fat for deep frying.

Cook the parsley in the butter and mix with the meat, potato, gravy and other seasonings thoroughly. Mold into croquette shapes. Dip into the egg mixture, roll in the bread crumbs and let stand an hour or longer to dry the coating. Heat the fat in a deep vessel to 350 degrees Fahrenheit or until a cube of bread browns in 40 seconds. Place two or three croquettes at a time in frying basket and lower slowly into the hot fat for two minutes or until they are a golden brown. Remove the croquettes and drain on a sheet of paper. Serve hot with parsley, garnish with tomato sauce.

To make softer croquettes, omit the mashed potatoes and either increase the quantity of gravy to three-fourths cup or use three-fourths cup of white sauce. To prepare gravy or white sauce thick enough to act as a binder for a croquette mixture, blend three tablespoons flour with one tablespoon butter, add three-fourths cup meat stock or milk and cook in a double boiler, stirring until smooth. Mix the gravy or sauce with the meat and seasonings.

4-H CLUB CAMPERS PLAN RETURN HOME

Boys and Girls at Session Anxious to Practice New Farm Ideas.

MRS. HOOVER WRITES

Practically all of the 150 boys and girls who attended the fourth annual encampment of 4-H Clubs here for the past week are now en route back to the farm, eager to put into practice the many ideas gleaned during the event which terminated last night.

Although she was unable to be in Washington to greet the campers personally, Mrs. Hoover yesterday wrote her regrets and best wishes in a letter sent from the President's fishing camp in the Blue Ridge Mountains, in which she said:

"I so hoped to be in Washington again this year at the time the 4-H Clubs were camping there, that I might be able to attend your dinner and have you all come to see me again and tell me the things your club had accomplished this year, and all your plans for next year, but since I am not to have this pleasure I must content myself with sending my greetings to you, to those of you whom I met last year, and to you new members who have come to camp in Washington for the first time. With the best of good wishes for a joyful and constructive camp and new year's program, I am, yours cordially,

"LOU HENRY HOOVER."

An address by Nils A. Olsen, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, was the feature of the morning program yesterday, while in the afternoon the boys and girls visited the Smithsonian Institution, Corcoran Gallery of Art, Pan American Union, Lincoln Memorial and Library of Congress. In the evening they gathered for their farewell campfire festivities in the camp quadrangle in Potomac Park.

Three Renamed To School Board

Simon, Bennett and Mrs. Smith Reappointed by Court.

Three members of the District Board of Education were reappointed for a term of three years yesterday by the District Supreme Court.

They are Rabbi Abram Simon, Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith and the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett. Dr. Simon was first appointed to the Board of Education in November, 1919, succeeding George E. Hamilton. In July, 1920, he was elected president of the board and was reelected to this office for three successive years. At the expiration of his three-year term in 1928 he declined a reappointment. In January of this year he was appointed to serve the unexpired term of Isaac Gans, who resigned.

Mrs. Smith and Dr. Bennett have served one term each of three years. Charles F. Carusi is president of the board.

WHOZIT?

1. He was a famous American actor, the son of a noted English actor.

2. He is remembered chiefly, however, as the assassin of a prominent American official.

3. This assassination is believed to have resulted from the passions aroused during a period of serious domestic disturbances.

4. After committing the crime he is reported to have shouted the famous phrase "Sic Semper Tyrannis."

Answer to yesterday—Jerome Bonaparte.

Estate of $76,000 Is Left by Smith

Former Capital News Firm Owner Leaves Bulk to Daughters.

William Smith, former owner of the Capital News Co., who died last Friday, left an estate valued at more than $76,000 in addition to his business, according to the petition for the probate of his will filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court. The estate, in addition to the business, consists of real estate valued at $31,000 and personal property estimated to be worth $45,000.

After making a number of specific bequests, the testator instructed his executors, Lucien H. Mercier and James A. Soper, to pay 40 per cent of the residuary estate to each of his daughters, Helen Smith and Kate Smith, and the remaining 20 per cent to Josephine Van Horne Sprague, a friend, in repayment for cash advances and services in operating the business. The latter also receives $20,000, an automobile, and the property at 720 New Jersey avenue where the business is conducted. Helen Smith receives $20,000 and a 6-carat diamond ring, while the other daughter is given $10,000. The widow, Lottie Y. Smith, was given a portion of the share of the proceeds to be derived from the sale of two houses, explanation being made that she already had received $21,000.

Bob Hummer, an employe, is left $2,000 in recompense of the many hours of overtime work he has given to the business, while Iva Voight, a maid, was remembered in the sum of $500. Charitable bequests were as follows: The Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, $2,500; Providence Hospital, $2,500, and St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery, $1,500, for the care of the graves of the testator and his mother.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Janet Decker, 18, with closely-cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and very quizzical eyes. The flying secretary for

Richard C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co., and father of Dick Tolbert, an attractive young man, who is an official for Great Eastern, and who has confessed his love for Janet, and whom Janet is beginning to think she loves. He, however, is enraged to Helen Morgan, a society girl, who has just sailed for Europe.

Hugh Temple, an official and pilot for Great Eastern, and the man who hired Janet. He is strangely missing and is suspected of having stolen a large shipment of money together with the plans in which he, with Tolbert, sr., and Janet, was transporting the money to a New York bank. Janet doesn't believe he is guilty.

Henry Prenda, a clerk in the office of Great Eastern and a friend of Janet's.

Fred Turner, an automobile mechanic, who has proposed to Janet and offered her an engagement ring. Janet tells him she thinks he loves him, but refuses the ring, promising him a definite answer soon.

Belter, office manager for Great Eastern.

Miss Sears, Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Janet and Fred return from a walk to find Dick Tolbert waiting at Janet's house. He tells her his father has to make a sudden trip to New York and that he has come to take her out to the airport. The detectives have found the missing ship, but have not located either Temple or the money. Dick tries to explain his actions back in the hotel when he had introduced Janet to Helen Morgan and Helen had insulted Janet. He says he would only have made matters worse if he had interfered, and finally convinces Janet. He tells her he does not love Helen Morgan, but loves Janet. They are interrupted by Dick's father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

For the first time since she had been in his employ Janet took dictation from Tolbert as they flew toward New York in a seven-passenger cabin plane. Lacking the conveniences Hugh Temple had provided for her in Susie, she wrote with her notebook on her knee.

Tolbert's memoranda came from a little book extracted from an inside pocket.

His sentences were long and involved, but he spoke slowly and distinctly and Janet's notes were as legible as though they had been written in Tolbert's office.

Occasionally she would look up to find him gazing at her intently, as though she distracted his thoughts. But then he would turn his head quickly to search the black night that surrounded their lighted cabin for some simple word or phrase.

Janet told herself that he suspected an alliance between her and Dick and that his thoughts were of them no less than of his correspondence. Feeling strangely like a naughty child who is being silently reprimanded for misbehavior, Janet was greatly relieved when at last he closed his little book and returned it to his pocket.

"I'll find you a machine at the hotel tomorrow morning," he told her pleasantly, "and you can get off the more important letters before noon."

Janet grinned. "Unless you load me up with a lot more in the meantime," she declared, "I'll get off all you've given me in 30 minutes after I start typing. Honest injun, Mr. Tolbert, this job is too soft. I'll begin to think I'm some sort of executive if you don't give me more to do."

Tolbert was highly amused. "What you fail to realize," he smiled, "is that you are really working much harder than you ever have before. Oh, I know; you aren't doing as much stenographic work, of course; but have you stopped to think that right now, at an hour when a young lady should be getting her beauty sleep, you are on duty?"

"Hmm!" Janet waved the argument aside. "This is fun. Not about Mr. Temple, you know, but all this flying up and down the country and staying in hotels and doing things I've never done before."

"Well, my dear," Tolbert told her, "you're simply enjoying your work. You aren't a stenographer any more. You're my private secretary and you are certainly holding the job down."

Naturally pleased, Janet nevertheless felt that she could not afford to encourage any further elaboration of this subject. Tolbert was studying her again and his eyes bespoke an interest that was neither professional nor paternal. She closed her notebook hastily and put her face to the window to stare out into the blackness through which they were flying.

Tolbert shifted uneasily, dug around in his brief case for a magazine and settled back to read. "I wonder if you would go up forward and ask my son to notify me when we are about to land?" he asked suddenly. "I'll want to get a few things together before we go down." And then as she slipped past him, he called after her: "You might stay up there until we are near the field, if you don't mind. Otherwise Dick won't have any way to let me know."

His strategy was not lost on Janet. It was a simple ruse to get her in the pilot's cabin with Dick. Why, she did not know. Unless he planned to surprise them.

Dick greeted her with a smile and pointed to the relief pilot's chair. "I was afraid you wouldn't come," he told her.

"I didn't voluntarily, if that's what you mean," she admitted.

"Mr. Tolbert sent me to tell you to let him know when you are about to land."

"Oh . . ." Disappointment. "Very well, Miss Decker. Please inform the president of the Great Eastern that I shall throw this tomato can into a tail spin when the field is directly beneath us. And . . ." with ludicrous gravity—— "I hope it spills his precious papers all over the cabin."

"Hmm! You aren't trying to scare me, are you? Besides, he told me to stay here until we got to the field so I could deliver the message."

"Good boy!" Dick laughed. "I'll take it all back about the spin. But why did he tell you to stay here, really?"

Janet shook her bobbed head. "Don't ask me, son." And, seriously: "You know, Dick I think your father suspects me of alienating his son's affections or something like that."

"An utterly groundless suspicion, of course," Dick said happily. "A more troublesome problem is how is his son to corral a little of your affections? . . . Don't you care for me at all, Janet?"

Janet was silent. She didn't want to lie to him and she couldn't afford to tell him the truth.

"Before that miserable episode at the hotel," Dick declared bitterly, "I had supposed you even loved me just a little. Didn't you, Janet?"

Janet said: "What difference does it make, Dick? No matter what you say, you're engaged, and while I'm not really engaged, I've had a proposal from a mighty nice young man. We're good friends as it is, Dick, and we'd better leave it that way."

"If I was a story-book hero, Janet," Dick replied candidly, "I'd probably be all upset over the news that you're in love with some one else, and, as a matter of decency, withdraw from the field. But I'm not that sort. I'm in love with you, Janet, and I'm fool enough to believe that there was something more than passing infatuation in your eyes when I kissed you before——"

"I asked you what difference it makes. There's no sense in stirring up trouble, Dick. There's Helen, and there's my—my boy friend in Waterbury. The dies are cast and we can't do anything about it."

"Which is another way of saying that you don't love me; is that it?"

"I haven't said that, Dick," Janet protested before she realized what she was saying. The group of lights she had seen growing steadily brighter directly ahead and now spread themselves out over a wide area. "I haven't said that," she hedged, "because whether I do or don't doesn't change things. We've got to accept facts as they are."

Dick was smiling broadly. "Right!" he agreed. "One of those facts is that I love you, Janet. Another is that you love me, at least a little, or you wouldn't be going to such pains to evade the question. And a third is that, regardless of all other facts, I'm going to marry you, darling. And"—he held up his hand as she tried to interrupt—"we are about to land at Curtiss Field and you'll go right down and tell the gentleman in the cabin."

The detectives, two soberly dressed men of middle age, were waiting for Tolbert at the field office. The amphibian had not been removed from the barn, some distance away, they explained, and Tolbert would have to go and identify it as a matter of form before it could be reassembled and brought back to the field. A local deputy sheriff and a crew of mechanics were waiting. Temple's name was not mentioned in the brief conversation.

"There's no sense in all of us going," Tolbert told Dick. "I suggest that you and Miss Decker go on to the hotel and let me follow as soon as I can."

"Nothing doing," Janet interrupted. "The last time we were here we went off and left Mr. Temple and you know what happened. I'd rather stay behind, if you don't mind, Mr. Tolbert."

Tolbert made no attempt to conceal his amusement. "But I'm quite safe, Miss Decker," he assured her. "These gentlemen are well armed. I take it, and they'll accompany me to the city when the night's work is done. I'd hold Dick to see that Susie isn't abused in the process of having her wings put back in place, but you can't go in alone, you know."

One of the field officials, overhearing this remark, told Tolbert: "Our bus is leaving in a few minutes with half a dozen passengers just in from the South. The young lady may go along if she likes."

"Splendid," said Tolbert. "You go in and try to get some sleep, Miss Decker. We've another trip ahead tomorrow and we'll have to start early."

Janet found that Tolbert had retained the same rooms at the hotel and the same uninspiring view from her windows gave her a feeling of having returned o her own.

It was as she turned back toward the door to remove her things that she recognized the smiling bell-hop. "Hmm" Janet mused. "Do you mean to tell me you're the same boy who took my bag downstairs? You must have hidden your face, son. How's everything?"

The youngster grinned his delight. "Fine, thank you, madam," he replied quickly. "I didn't know you had left the hotel until I saw you walk in a few minutes ago. Have you been back to Connecticut?"

"Sure have," Janet assured him. "The old home State's the same as ever. How is it you're working tonight? I thought you were going on day duty."

"I'm taking another fellow's place tonight, madam, but——"

"Listen," Janet interrupted; "no more of that madam stuff with me; understand? You and I are homefolks and I'm glad you're on tonight. It makes me feeel easier." She put a tightly folded bill into his hand and put a finger on his lips to check his protest. "I got off without squaring accounts with you before, so this just makes us even. Good night."

Left alone, Janet looked at her watch. It was after midnight. Tolbert had said they were to make another flight tomorrow; she would have to get some sleep.

But when she was in bed and lay with her face to the open window the thought of Dick Tolbert kept her awake. He had said that he did not love Helen Morgan; that he did love her, Janet; and that he was determined to marry her. Had he really meant that? And if he had, what was she to do about it?

For more than an hour she turned and tossed in a fever of restlessness. And then at last, at the very moment that she would have gone defeated into the imaginary arms held out to her, she fell asleep.

A bell was ringing madly. Janet awoke with a start. The room was still dark.

She slid from the bed, frightened, and groped about for a light. But in her confusion she could not remember where the wall button was located.

The incessant tingling of the bell wore on her nerves.

She all but held her breath to keep from screaming. Then her hand touched something cold, and the ringing became a series of dull clicks. It was the telephone.

Trembling, she pulled the receiver from the hook and put it to her ear. "Yes. . . ?"

"We've a call for Mr. Tolbert," a woman's voice replied. "Will you take it?"

"Why—yes, yes, of course."

After a moment a hoarse voice said, "Hello! Is this Tolbert?"

It was not a nice voice. It was not even a friendly voice. Janet detected in it a note of threat.

"This is Mr. Tolbert's secretary," she replied, straining to hold an even pitch. "Mr. Tolbert——" She checked herself quickly; she would not reveal Tolbert's whereabouts to this man until she knew his business. "Mr. Tolbert is asleep just now. Can't I take the message?"

"Hell, no! If I'd wanted to chew the fat with you, sister, I'd have asked for you, see? You go get Tolbert out of bed and be damned quick about it. And——" His rasping voice dropped and Janet drew back instinctively. "And if he doesn't move fast enough you tell him it's about his little boy friend, Temple——"

"Temple!" The word had come from her lips in a little cry before she was aware that she had spoken.

The gruff voice said, "Yes, Temple. You heard me. Tell Tolbert I'm giving him a chance to save Temple's neck, see? But if he doesn't make it snappy it's just too bad."

Janet heard herself saying "Oh! All right. I'll go tell him at once. Just hold the phone."

Weakly she sank down on the bed and ran her hand in great circles over the wall. At last she found the button and the room was flooded with light.

In less than a minute she was in her frock and pumps and was running from the room. The transoms along the hall were dark, but before she reached the elevator stop she came to a door above which a dim light shone. She knocked lightly.

An elderly man, closely wrapped in a bathrobe, cracked the door and peered out.

"It's very important that I use a telephone at once," Janet told him, pleadingly. "I'll only be a moment and you can leave the door open if you like."

The man was not particularly pleased at the prospect of having a comely young woman in his bedroom, but he gave way before her determined approach.

Janet called the house operator. "Listen," she said, her voice trembling; "you've just put a call on my phone in 619. Check back on the exchange operator and find out where that call's being made from. It's terribly important, so work as fast as you can."

An interminable silence, during which the gentleman in the bathrobe stood like a statue by the door, plainly in misery.

At last the operator again: "The call is being made from a public booth at the Forty-fourth Street Hotel," she told Janet. "Is that all?"

"No, wait! How far is the Forty-fourth Street Hotel from here?"

"One block over; almost opposite this hotel," the operator replied shortly, as if irritated by all this curiosity.

Janet swept past the stiff figure by the door with a murmured "Thanks, awfully," and dashed back to her own room.

One hand over the mouthpiece of the phone, she waited an endless moment to regulate her breathing. Then, "Hello——"

"Well, where's Tolbert?" the harsh voice made it clear that this delay was not to his liking.

Janet said evenly: "I've just sent a boy up to wake him. He'll answer on his own phone in a minute or two, I'm sure."

"He'd better make it snappy; that's all I've got to say. I'm not hanging onto this phone much longer, see?"

Once more Janet was in the hall, closing the door of her room quietly. Then she ran for the elevator.

In the lobby she encountered the Connecticut bellhop, all smiles, as usual. "Listen," she said to him in an excited undertone; 'I'm going out to get the lowdown on a desperate criminal. If anything happens to me tell Mr. Tolbert to find out who called him from a public booth at the Forty-fourth street Hotel. The house operator will remember the call."

The bellhop grinned incredulously Then his boyish face took on an expression of amazement as Janet dashed across the lobby and disappeared through the revolving door.

exclusively in The Washington Post, will write a daily article beginning July 1st. No American can afford to miss the messages of this great leader. No newspaper has ever had a greater privilege than offering to its readers the writings of Calvin Coolidge.

Calvin Coolidge, in his autobiography, revives the young Calvin Coolidge who attended the little red schoolhouse in Vermont, who sold apples and popcorn at the town meetings, who went, eager-eyed, to study at the Black River Academy, and was molded by the teachings of the fine old-school scholars at Amherst. He tells of the young college graduate settling down as a lawyer in Northampton, earning five hundred dollars in his first year; of the young householder busily engaged in providing for his family and in being a good neighbor; of Calvin Coolidge, Mayor of Northampton. The stir of political battles, the grave days of the Boston police strike; the swift and dramatic march of events that carried him to the White House; the rugged decision to return to private life—all pass in living review, in a book that is a masterpiece of pithy sincerity, and bears on every page the imprint of a great personality.

And in Mr. Coolidge's daily articles there will be the wealth of his extraordinary career, brought to bear upon timely observations and comments. Read them every day, beginning July 1st. Exclusively in—

NATS DEFEAT INDIANS, 7 TO 0, IN 5-INNING GAME

10 Americans Advance in Britain

Tilden, Mrs. Moody Easy Winners at Wimbledon.

Edith Cross Defeated by Belgian Girl in Upset.

By FRANK H. KING.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 24 (A.P.).—Continuing its parade through the English tennis championship field, the United States today landed seven of its ranking men stars in the third round and advanced three of its women representatives to the second in the play at Wimbledon.

Without losing a set, Bill Tilden, George Lott, Johnny Doeg, Berkeley Bell, Johnny Van Ryn, Wilmer Allison and Gregory Manging easily brushed aside all opposition. The women invaders from across the Atlantic were not so fortunate. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody came through as expected along with the youthful Sarah Palfrey, of Boston; Mary Greef, of Kansas, and Elizabeth Ryan, but Miss Edith Cross, of San Francisco, fell before the devastating drives of Mlle. Josane Sigart, Belgium's No. 1 ranking player, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Mrs. Moody Loses First Sets As Courtesy.

Mrs. Moody's opponent, Fraulein Hilda Krahwinkel, Germany's third ranking player, made a good showing against the champion, although after dropping the first game in each set, as is Mrs. Moody's courteous manner, the outcome was never in doubt. The Queen of the Courts smashed powerful drives down the lines whenever she needed a point, to win 6—2, 6—1.

The only American man defeated was E. O. Mather, a Texas student at Oxford, who gave Tilden nothing more than a brief practice session, Big Bill winning 6—2, 6—2, 6—1.

Wilmer Allison and George Lott had the hardest battles of America's Davis Cup players before they eliminated English opponents. Allison disposed of S. W. Harris, 6—3, 8—6, 6—4, while Lott took the measure of the veteran Charles H. Kingsley, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Tex., went into the third round with a decisive victory over Roderick Menzel, first ranking Czechoslovakian player, 6—1, 6—2, 6—2. Johnny Doeg, the California southpaw, advanced at the expense of Al Della Porta, of England, by the scores of, 6—3, 6—1, 6—2.

Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J.,

Rippon, W. Va., June 24.—The Woodlawn Baseball Team, of Fort Myer, Va., handed the home team a 10-2 defeat here in a walk-away for the visitors. After Rippon had gotten off to a one-run lead in the first inning, Woodlawn went ahead with a three-run rally in the third, never to be headed. McGeever led the winners' attack with three hits.

Ring License Of Godfrey Canceled

Negro Also Loses His Rating as Contender in Pennsylvania.

Carnera's Stable Set Down for Row of Manager.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—George Godfrey, colored heavyweight, who fouled Primo Carnera here last night, lost his boxing license, half of his purse, and his status as a heavyweight contender at a special meeting of the State Athletic Commission today.

Godfrey was paid on a pro rata basis for the number of rounds he fought. As he was to receive $10,000 for ten rounds, he was paid $5,000 for five rounds.

The commission also revoked Godfrey's 1930 license as a fighter in this State. This means Godfrey is through as a fighter in Pennsylvania, for this year, at least.

The commission, which has heretofore ruled that it would never recognize any one as champion of the world until Godfrey had been taken into account, further decided his showing ruled him out of the championship contenders.

The board declined, however, to take any action toward recognizing Max Schmeling as champion.

Carnera Visits Shore.

Carnera did not appear before the board today, having gone to Atlantic City immediately after last night's bout. Jimmy Dougherty, manager of Godfrey, was absolved of all blame in connection with the foul fight.

"I told Godfrey the one way to lick that guy was to outbox him," declared Dougherty, "but George was too dumb to follow my instructions."

Carnera was given a clean bill of health as far as the fight was concerned and received his full purse of $43,641.39, 30 per cent of the gate.

However, Carnera also drew a suspension because of trouble growing out of an argument between another fighter under the same management and an inspector for the State commission.

Jack Silver, who fought on the same card and who is under the same management as the big Italian, last night refused to wear a regulation protection belt for his fight and was backed up by Leon See, his manager.

Connelly Struck By Manager.

Francis Connelly, deputy inspector for the commission, reported this to chairman Frank Wiener, who sent the inspector back with the command Silver must wear the belt.

This so angered Billy Duffy, another of Carnera's numerous managers, he struck Connelly on the jaw. Duffy admitted this at the hearing. The blow was said to have split Connelly's upper lip, loosed his teeth and knocked him down.

As a result of the row, Duffy, See, Walter Friedman, who is also a manager of Carnera, and all of the fighters in the "stable" were suspended indefinitely.

Benton Stars in Box As Reds Whip Giants

Redland Field, Cincinnati, Ohio, June 24 (A.P.).—Larry Benton held the Giants in check today and the Reds won the third game of the series by a score of 4 to 1. Joe Genewich, hurling for the Giants, went six innings and then retired for a pinch hitter, Joe Heving finishing the game.

The Giants made at least one hit in every inning but the ninth, rolling up a total of eleven hits, but Benton was at his best with men on the bases and they would not have scored at all but for an error by Leo Durocher.

Coast Crews Favored in Regatta

Washington - California Promise Real Competition.

Syracuse Stock Now Booming; M. I. T. on the Wane.

By TED VOSBURGH.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24 (A.P.).—Prebattle discussion on the part of oarsmen and coaches in the rowing camps and boathouses scattered along the Hudson made it evident today that the 4-mile struggle for varsity championship honors on Thursday will be not one race but half a dozen.

The Golden Bears, of California, turned back by Washington more than two months ago by the margin of one-fifth of a second in their duel for Pacific Coast supremacy, are out to beat the crew from Seattle if it is the last thing they ever do.

Washington Confident of Beating California.

Washington, on the other hand, feels fully capable of taking the measure of California again and will concentrate most of its attention upon the Glendon-coached eights of the Navy and Columbia, which have proved their principal rivals in past Poughkeepsie regattas.

"It's a funny thing about these two Pacific Coast crews," remarked the veteran Cornell mentor, Jim Wray, with a chuckle.

"Washington thinks California is full five lengths slower than when they raced early in the season—and California thinks the same about Washington.

"The reason probably is that they have had a chance to see a lot of each other here and have noticed the little flaws that were not apparent to them before."

California Star Out With Infected Hand.

Both camps have been stirred by reports of casualties. The latest was announcement by Coach Ky Ebright, of California, today that Bill Dally, No. 5 oarsman and one of three veterans of the intercollegiate and Olympic champion crews of 1928, was handicapped by an infected hand. He is still at his post, however, as is Loren Schoel, big Washington No. 5, who was reported to have strained his shoulder.

Ebright feels his crew is considerably better than its record appears, although somewhat short on maturity. The Californians, averaging 20 years old, are the youngest varsity on the river.

As for some of the other crews, Syracuse is drawn in the next lane to the Navy and the Orange eight will be out to give the Middies the battle of their lives. There is a strong feeling in the Syracuse camp that if they can "take" the Navy they can beat the field.

Syracuse-Cornell Gird For Battle.

The ancient rivalry between those upstate neighbors, Syracuse and Cornell, also adds interest to the battle.

Cornell has qualified as the hard luck crew of the river, losing its stroke oar and commodore, Hod Shoemaker, of Bridgeton, N. Y., through illness, but the Ithacans have a world of weight and power.

One of the surprising developments has been the way Syracuse, usually not highly regarded in the advance speculation, has found favor among rivals who have seen the Orange row.

The boom in the stock of Massachusetts Tech has subsided somewhat, partly because the Engineers have dropped almost to the 170 mark in average weight. Many feel that this is too light for a 4-mile race.

Fighter and Promoter Held for Ring Death

Wheeling, W. Va., June 24 (A.P.).—A charge of involuntary manslaughter was filed against Perry Bridges, of Warwood, today, following the death of Bruno McRaskey, 23, of Moundsville, who was injured in a boxing match with Bridges last night. McRaskey died from concussion of the brain.

George Brown, manager, and John Ritz, matchmaker of the Metropolitan Club, where the fight was held, were charged with unlawfully conducting boxing bouts.

Bridges was held under $1,000 bail on a charge of unlawful assault today. The county prosecutor said he would file charges of involuntary manslaughter against him.

Ritz will be given a hearing on a charge of unlawfully conducting a boxing match. Boxing matches to which admission is charged are illegal in West Virginia, but bouts are staged here under a club plan, club memberships being sold to those attending the matches.

GOLFER KEEPS HER PLEDGE

In 1925 Marion Hollins (center), former golf champion, agreed that when she made a million dollars she would share $50,000 with Mrs. Louise Dudley (left), and Eric Pedley. Miss Hollins, who made her million in oil, is pictured at a dinner in Santa Cruz, where the checks were presented.

The Zitenfeld twins of New York, Bernice and Phyllis, are training at Dover, England, for another attempt to swim the English Channel from Dover to the French coast. They tried the swim last summer, but failed.

Malone Checks Phils As Cubs Win, 6 to 1

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—The Cubs are only two games behind the Dodgers as a result of their victory over the Phillies here this afternoon. The score was 6 to 1.

Pat Malone did the pitching and tamed the visitors with eight hits. The Phils helped the Cub cause by making four errors which resulted in three runs.

Dempsey, 35, Hopes to Fight Carnera or Schmeling in '31

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

LOS ANGELES, June 24 (A.P.).—William Harrison Dempsey passed the thirty-fifth milestone of his eventful life today, showing unmistakable signs of a yearning to do something definite about emerging from ring retirement. He may surrender to the yearning next spring.

The Manassa mauler, heavyweight champion of the days before fouls, is sorely vexed with the present situation. In fact, he is piqued almost to the point of being willing to climb in and save the game he loves from what he believes to be certain ruin.

But Dempsey always has had an eye to business. He retired from the ring twice before, each time returning to collect.

"I would like to fight Primo Carnera," said Jack. "Such a battle should gross two million, and there are only two places where such a fight could be staged—Chicago and New York.

"Sure, I get offers every day, but if some one could promise three-quarters or even half a million as my share I might take a shot at it.

"All depends on whether I can get in shape. I wouldn't mind fighting Max Schmeling for that matter if I could get in condition."

Dempsey said he would not try heavy training for a while yet, despite the fact that a wound from an operation is healing nicely, "but I wouldn't think of fighting before next May," he added.

"The pressure for one or two more fights is pretty strong. I feel great now and have been watching my diet, so I haven't put on any weight. But I'm training light. It all depends on my condition."

The former champion said if he could whip himself into condition he would prefer to take on Carnera first. If victorious, then he would step over the prostrate Primo's bulk to tackle the German gladiator and present champion if he can get in shape.

Brown Hurls In Final of Series

Griffith Admits Seeking Hale, Browns, on Waivers.

Sam Jones Pitches to Batters; Rice Is About Ready.

PECKINPAUGH'S Indians end their series here this afternoon with the fourth game of the current set, journeying on to New York, where they should find more tough going. They are particularly anxious to cop today's battle as victory is needed to prevent them from losing the entire set to the Nationals and, in the hope of turning the trick, will use Mel Harder, who won his first six starts, on the hill.

Lloyd Brown is expected to get the hurling assignment from Manager Johnson. The Tribe is rated as a particularly hard club for a southpaw to beat, but not only is Brown the only Washington pitcher available, but Johnson declares that left handed or not "Brownie" when right can beat any team in the business and, from what Lloyd has shown in his warm-ups and against his mates in wand drills lately, he is just about right.

The Indians by the way have had just about as hard a task assigned them since June 7 as any team ever will get in an American League schedule. Since that date they have battled exclusively with the three teams rated as the other contenders, the Nats, Mackmen and Yankees. When they get through with the coming set in New York, they should be able to breathe easier for a spell.

Report of Hale Coming Here, Premature, Says Griff.

According to Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Club, the report that the Nationals have gotten Infielder Sammy Hale on waivers from the St. Louis Browns is premature.

"It is true that we made a bid for Hale when the Browns asked waivers on him," said the Nat owner last night, "but we did not telegraph our claim until 10:30 yesterday morning. As we are in second place in the league standing, bids of any of the clubs lower than we are in the race would have precedence over us. Then again clubs often ask waivers on a player and immediately withdraw them from the list. While we may ultimately land Hale, I am confident that the report that we have him already is premature, especially as I have not received the usual notice from E. S. Barnard, American League president."

"I would like to get Hale," Griffith continued, "as he is a right-handed hitter and a good fielder and, if I landed him, the Nats would be set as regards infield utility strength and this would enable me to option out Jimmy McLeod so that he could get the experience which he needs."

Hale is 33 years of age and an experienced player, having started his professional career back in 1917 with the San Antonio Club of the Texas League. He came to the majors late in 1919 to Detroit and wore Tiger livery all of 1920 and 1921, then being sent to Portland. The Athletics bought him in 1923 and he has been performing with the present world's champs until traded to St. Louis last winter for Catcher Wally Schang. He has not been used much this season by the Browns, but probably would fit in here like a glove as utility infielder and pinch hitter. His all-time stick mark is .304.

Tigers to Invade Tomorrow.

Bucky Harris and his Tigers will be in our midst, starting tomorrow, when the first of a three-game series will be played. Then will come the Browns for four games, starting Sunday, and the Yankees for the same number of games, including a July 4 double-header, and the Nats then head West again via Boston.

With respect to the Independence Day attraction, the Washington Club has been considering playing morning and afternoon games, but finally

HADLEY HOLDS TRIBE IN CHECK UNTIL RAIN STOPS PLAY IN SIXTH

Cronin and Manush Drive in Two Runs Each in Fray.

Brown, Young Pitcher, Hit Hard; Harris Stars Afield.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON'S Nats battled two opponents and beat them both, downing Cleveland Indians, 7 to 0, and making this victory "official" by beating the elements, getting the necessary four and one-half innings played before rain broke up the ball game. The triumph over the Tribe was more one-sided than that over old Jupiter Pluvius, for the latter butted in before the Nats could complete their sixth and so the fracas got in the books as a five-inning affair.

As both the league-leading Mackmen and the third-place Yankees were unable to play because of rain, the Nationals gained half a game on each, cutting down the Athletics' lead to two games and giving them a full-game second-place advantage over the New Yorkers.

Irving Hadley and Clint Brown, the latter a rookie right-hander obtained from New Orleans this spring, who has been pitching good ball this season, started on the hill for their respective teams, but the latter found the going too rough for him and quit at his boss' request via the pinch-hitter route, Ken Holloway being on the hill at the finish.

Indians' Lone Threat Does Not Count.

According to the box-score, Hadley allowed but five hits and, during the official portion of the game he performed exceptionally well, only one Indian getting as far as third while second was virgin territory for all but two others. The alien sixth was the only one in which the visitors looked dangerous but, as already stated, this did not count.

In it singles by Hodapp, Averill and Jamieson, wrapped around two outs, filled the bases and set the stage for Dave Harris to contribute the best catch of the day. He ended this session by backing up against the right-field wall and making a leaping gloved-hand catch of Myatt's liner to save at least two runs. While this grab does not go into the baseball records, undoubtedly it was registered in the books of the 4,000 fans who saw it.

An error by Brown gave the Nationals their first run, in the second, but in the next two frames there was no question but what the natives were in a hitting mood and all of the damage they did was on an "earned" basis, despite two other Cleveland miscues.

Error Gives Nats First Run of Game.

Cronin, who makes a practice of either coaxing passes or hitting doubles, drew a free ticket to first opening round 2 and was propelled midway on Harris' scratch safety to Burnett. After Shires had died on a pop fly, Bluege rolled to Brown, who shot the ball toward second in the hope of starting a double play. His aim was poor, however, Cronin scoring before the ball could be retrieved. Harris also tried to register but was nipped at the plate.

Myer opened Washington's four-run rally in the next session, singling to center and carrying on to second when Averill toyed with the ball. West singled him home, took third on Manush's double, and then Cronin scored both runners with a Texas league two-baser to right. A useful out and Bluege's one-baser scored Cronin.

With rain in the offing and the cash customers fearful that it would arrive before the Indians could complete their fifth, thus robbing the Nationals of victory, there were several loud suggestions from the stands that Johnson's men get out on purpose in their fourth, but the players had other ideas. Hadley opened with a single, Myer beat out his intended sacrifice, West suicided both along and Manush then came through with his second double of the game to empty the sacks. Then the Nationals got out in short order, evidently figuring that their lead was big enough.

The Indians wasted two hits in their fifth and there was a big cheer when the final out was turned in, for

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

WHILE Morgan was at bat in the first, Umpire "Bull" Guthrie did not like some of the remarks addressed to him from the Cleveland bench and called time while he walked to the dugout and told the Peckmen to "cut it out—or else."

Brown retired the Nats in their opener on five pitched balls, Myer and West hitting his first offerings to them.

Cronin dashed to short left opening the second to just manage to grab Hodapp's looper as it was sailing over his head. It was quite a catch. The "San Francisco Keed" ended the round by hustling over past second for Jamieson's bounder.

Opening round 3, Myer chased behind second for Sewell's grasser, following through with a quick pivot peg.

Pitcher Brown obtained the first alien hit, doubling down the left-field line with two dead in the third. The drive was fair by a matter of inches.

Myer's single opening the home third was a hump-back grounder that hopped over Hodapp's head. When Averill failed to handle the ball cleanly, Buddie hot-footed it to second.

Cronin's double which scored two Nats in the third was a bat-handle looper to short right. As far as results were concerned, it was just as effective as a screaming liner off the right field fence.

Manush tried to steal third while Brown was holding the ball in the Nats' fourth. Maybe he hoped he would be caught, which he was, for rain appeared to be just in the offing and the Johnsons were anxious to get in four and one-half innings of play in order to make the affair legal. As soon as Cronin tossed out, Porter ending the alien fifth, the fans breathed sighs of relief, for the game became of legal length and there were many cries from the stands of "Let her rain."

Hodapp's single in the sixth was a hot roller which took a bad hop and skidded off Bluege's glove as he was set to catch it. After Averill had singled, Jamieson filled the bases with a looper similar to Cronin's of the third, the ball dropping just out of the reach of Shires, Myer and Harris, all three of whom went after the ball.

Dave Harris made the feature catch of the game in the alien sixth when he backed up to the right-field fence and made a leaping one-hand grab of

HIGH FOOT, IN FORM, WINS WASHINGTON FEATURE

Track Record For Mile Is Equaled

Valley Lake Colt Staves Off Uncle Luther at Finish.

Ayraud and Garitty Are Suspended for Rough Riding.

WASHINGTON PARK, CHICAGO, June 24 (A.P.).—The Valley Lake Stable's 3-year-old colt, High Foot, a disappointment in training for early season stakes, came into his own today by winning the Edna Hibbard Purse here, and racing the mile in 1:37 2-5 to equal the track record held by Misstep. Uncle Luther was second, with Culloden taking the minor end of the purse.

High Foot, ridden by the apprentice rider, J. Marcum, was tuned to concert pitch today. He took the lead at once, and repulsed repeated challenges by Tannery and Morsel, easily held Uncle Luther safe at the last. The winning horse paid $8.22 for $2.

The stewards dealt out punishment to Jockeys Ralph Ayraud and P. Garrity, suspending both for the remainder of the meeting for rough riding. Ayraud returned to the saddle last Monday after serving ten days for a similar offense.

Blind Lane Wins At Aqueduct.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., June 24 (A.P.).—The Goodstone Stable's Blind Lane, with Pete Walls in the saddle, made a runaway race of the Canarsie Claiming Stakes, which featured the program here today. John P. White's John F. was second and Mrs. T. R. Queen's Grandma Lapp third. The latter was the victim of a very poorly judged ride on the part of L. Fator. He got the filly away slow and then took her to the outside of the big field. She lost many lengths by this move but at the end was running over the leaders. Blind Lane and John F. had the race between them all the way. Blind Lane proved the best to win by three lengths. John F. beat Grandma Lapp a like distance for the place. The winner received $6,150 and the time was 1:01 3-5.

Army Netmen Flock Here for Title Event

More than 30 players are expected to appear in the annual Army tennis championship tournament which opens with singles matches tomorrow on the Columbia Country Club courts at 2 p. m. Several of the contestants already have arrived in the city and have been practicing. With the exception of five or six, the players represent Army stations in other sections of the country, some as far distant as California.

Maj. Robert Van Vliet, until recently stationed in the Canal Zone, now temporarily assigned here in the office of the chief of infantry, will compete in defense of his singles and doubles championships won last year. Maj. Van Vliet is the outstanding tennis player among the officers of the Army.

Pairings will be drawn tomorrow at noon.

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JOCK will have STARS AND BARS to beat in the Blackstone Hotel Handicap, feature at Washington Park today, a gallop of a mile and 70 yards. At this writing the track is fast, but rain is forecast. On either kind of track JOCK should win and has been well treated by the handicapper, with only 116 pounds, though this is the top weight. STARS AND BARS, from the Greentree Stable, has the light impost of 110 pounds and will be a keen contender, but JOCK outclasses the field. The Three D's Stock Farm entry of WAR TIME and DOUBLE HEART will be the contender. DOUBLE HEART is the stronger of the entry. McGONIGLE is over his head. JOCK should never be overhauled, with an even start.

FIRST RACE is for fillies and mares 3 years old and up and may develop a duel between MARIE JOHNSON and LOUISE WILSON, with preference for the first named. FLORHI, a recent winner, has all her speed and may prove troublesome. JENNIFER, at her best, would have a chance, but her racing has been off.

SECOND RACE—Eighteen maiden 2-year-olds are listed for the second race, but six are on the eligible list, reducing the field to twelve in claiming races. BEIGE was a sharp contender recently and is due to leave the maiden class. ENTICE is undoubtedly the one to beat and should be at least second. VALEDICTORY will be dangerous, but is fifth on the eligible list and may not get in.

THIRD RACE seems a close thing between MORSUN and ELLICE, the latter being the favorite, but it is getting time MORSUN was waking up, and this may be the spot. CHEERS will figure in the race, but is inconsistent and likes a longer route. GRACIOUS GIFT also has a chance, but there seems too much early speed for him.

FOURTH RACE — The Hammond, for 2-year-olds, should be won by BLUE LAW. On his last New York race he should win easily, but having failed the other day in Chicago, will be a good price today. CHARMER is the contender. MARY COBB is almost certain to be as good as third. This filly is better than she has shown in recent races.

SIXTH RACE—BAR SINISTER seems best in the sixth race. CARIB if ready will give him a battle. BAKED APPLE is a kind of freak horse which occasionally turns in a good race, and won in Maryland at a long price.

SEVENTH RACE — FRANCES MILWARD stands out in the seventh race. BILLY CHAMP is by all odds the contender. MOROCCO can stand off the others.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MODERATION, $7.30, $4.16, $3.08; NEGODALE, $8.60, $4.32; ROY GIBSON, $3.98.

MODERATION began fast and was kept a forward factor from the start on the outside and, coming with a rush entering stretch, took the lead from ROY GIBSON and held sway to the end. NEGODALE closed a big gap early to get into contention and, holding on well in long drive, outlasted ROY GIBSON. Latter, getting to the front on the inside, showed most early speed, but could not match the winner's challenge and tired in the stretch. MAKE HASTE saved ground, but could not get to winner.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 2-year-old maidens, fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:01. Winner, Rancocas Stable's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZALIA, $7.04, $3.72, $2.86; CHICAGO GIRL, $3.12, $2.64; FRESHET, $3.80.

ZAILA away fast and making all her own pace, shook off MAID OF HONOR easily, drew away and won as rider pleased. CHICAGO GIRL saved ground on outside, gained steadily, but was held safe by the winner. FRESHET, outrun early, closed a big gap on outside in final quarter. SPRING CLEANING saved ground, but could never get up. MAID OF HONOR tired after being close up first three furlongs. BUBBLE WEIGHT was carried wide by OUR PET, who was ridden wide entering the stretch.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 3:32. Off at 3:33. Winner, Rancocas Stable's b. f. (3), by Zev—Royalite. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZIDA, $8.44, $4.82, $3.68; SUPRYSE, $6.92, $5.40; VALDOSTA, $6.68.

ZIDA, reserved under restraint close to the pace to the stretch, closed resolutely on outside, gradually wearing down the leaders in final furlong and was up to outfinish SUPRYSE. SUPRYSE went forward on inside, saved much ground, was challenged and disposed of HONEY LOCUST when around the final turn, took a brief lead, but weakened in the final drive. VALDOSTA, badly outrun to the stretch turn, closed a gap in the final quarter and was wearing down SUPRYSE at end. PORTMANTEAU had no excuse and tired under pressure in late stages.

MITCHELL GAINS 4TH ROUND IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Hilltop Star Victor by 9-7, 6-4

Yeoman Winner in Consolations of Tournament.

Seligson, of Lehigh, Reaches Quarter-final Round.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Dennison (Dooly) Mitchell, Georgetown, teammate of Gregory Mangin, who is in Europe gaining the experience of international competition, continued his stellar play to remain in the running for the intercollegiate tennis crown here today by advancing to the fourth round.

Mitchell, in his third round encountered today, brushed aside Tom Nicely, of Swarthmore College in straight sets, but not until after a hectic battle. The scores were 9—7, 6—4.

By his victory, Mitchell remained in the competition with thirteen others. Julius Seglison, Lehigh, champion in 1928 and Clifford Sutton, Tulane, reached the quarter finals, while the other twelve climbed to the fourth round.

Nicely Gives Mitchell Battle.

Nicely played steady tennis in the first set and made it quite a battle with Mitchell. The volleys came often and most of the games were played to deuce before they were decided. Six games were necessary before the Washington racquet wielder landed the set.

The pair started to battle closely in the second set, but Mitchell's drive and placements were going over with telling force and landed the set for him.

Clyde D. Yeoman, Georgetown, eliminated in yesterday's play, started in the quest for the consolation singles crown. In his first round match he conquered A. Smeaton, Duquesne, in three long sets, 8—10, 6—2, 6—3.

Third round—Clifford Robbins, University of California, Los Angeles, defeated Lawrence Hall, Stanford, 6—4, 6—1.

Bertram Hammell, Swarthmore, defeated Robert Muench, University of California, Berkeley, 3—6, 6—2, 9—7.

Dennison Mitchell, Georgetown, defeated Tom Nicely, Swarthmore, 9—7, 6—4.

Ted Burwell, University of South, defeated John McDiarmid, Texas Christian University, 6—3, 6—1.

First round, doubles—McKee and Ludlow, University of California, Berkeley, defeated Detwiler and Oppenheimer, Cornell, 7—5, 6—4.

SPINNERS BUY HURLER.

CLUB'S SUIT OPENS WAR ON LANDIS

Milwaukee, Seeking to Keep Bennett, Goes to Court.

CHICAGO, June 24 (A.P.).—The first open rebellion against the arbitrary authority of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, broke out today when the Milwaukee Club of the American Association brought suit in Federal court to stop the transfer of one of it players to the St. Louis Browns of the American League.

The player involved is Fred Bennet, a first baseman, now with Milwaukee. Commissioner Landis had ordered the St. Louis Browns, which turned Bennet over to the Milwaukee team on option for two years, to either take him back, waive its option to another major league club or release Bennet outright.

The management of the Milwaukee Club refused to allow Bennet to return to the St. Louis Club, and filed suit before Federal Judge George A. Carpenter seeking to restrain Landis from transferring the player.

George W. Miller, an attorney representing Commissioner Landis, assured Judge Carpenter the transfer order would be held in abeyance until the court renders its decision. The case was continued indefinitely.

Today's suit is the first outbreak protesting Commissioner Landis' authority since he became the czar of baseball following the Black Sox scandal of 1920.

The major league club owners, in their agreement with Landis, pledged themselves not to take their affairs into court. The minor leaguers also are said to have made the same sort of an agreement.

Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, also is reputed to have 50 per cent interest in the control of the Milwaukee Club, which brought the suit. Ball was a warm supporter of Ban Johnson, who was ousted as president of the American League, following his warfare with Landis.

Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American Association, was surprised at the court action.

"I did not know anything about it," he said, "until the suit was filed."

President Ernest Barnard of the American League had no comment to make other than to say that the major league club owners had pledged themselves to accept the rulings of Commissioner Landis without resort to court action.

Shore and McLean Await Midatlantic Title Play

WASHINGTON'S leading boy and junior tennis players will put up a strenuous fight for honors in the Middle Atlantic championships to be held Friday and Saturday in Richmond, according to close observers of the net situation here.

Jock McLean, District boy champion; Gilbert Hunt, runner-up; Frank Shore, junior champion, and Clyde Smith, runner-up, will carry the Capital City banner in the tournament. McLean and Shore reached the final round of their respective divisions last year and have been steadily improving their game since.

Young McLean, local tennis critics state, is hitting them harder and more accurately than ever before, and this fact alone, they point out, means that he will afford sterner opposition than he did in 1929.

Shore's Game Improves.

Shore has not only gained in experience since the 1929 tournament, but his driving has grown speedier and his net play has become far more effective. The 17-year-old Department of Justice clerk, who won his third successive District junior crown recently, has developed into a daring player and one capable of giving much older players a real battle.

One thing favoring the chances of the District representatives at Richmond is that neither of the 1929 champions is returning. Henry Clabaugh, of Baltimore, who defeated Shore in the junior final last year, has passed the age limit. The boy champion, a lad named Morgan, of Norfolk, hasn't sent in his entry for the 1930 event.

While Washington's hopes rest mostly on the shoulders of McLean and Shore, neither Hunt nor Smith is being left out of consideration by those who would pick the 1930 winners. Hunt is the only local boy, judging from past performances, who can extend McLean, and Smith showed he could push Shore when he engaged the junior leader in the finals of the District tournament.

alternate on the U. S. Davis Cup Team, joined the American advance by eliminating O. G. Noel Turnbull, former British Davis Cup player, 3—2, 7—5, 6—0. Johnny Van Ryn completed the sweep, defeating L. Chamberlain, of England, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2.

Miss S. Palfrey Impressive In Victory.

Miss Palfrey made her British championship debut by defeating Miss B. Yorke, of England, 6—1, 6—4. The victory of Miss Greef was just as impressive when she eliminated Mme. T. Wolf, of Austria, 6—1, 6—1. Miss Ryan, who makes her home in England, turned back Miss H. M. Brooke, of England, 6—2, 6—3.

From now on the Americans will find tougher competition. In tomorrow's play Bell meets Henri Cochet, of France, the defending champion, while Allison plays Lyttleton Rogers, the lanky Irishman.

Doeg is scheduled to try his southpaw drives against the Frenchman, Christian Boussus. Mangin will play Miki, veteran Japanese star.

At least one American will be eliminated when Van Ryn opposes Tilden on the center court. Lott, who today displayed the best all around game the Chicagoan has ever shown at Wimbledon, finds an experienced opponent in Harry Holman, Australia's Davis Cup star.

Jean Borotra reaches the third round only after five hard-fought sets with H. G. N. Lee, British Davis cupper. The scores were 5—7, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, 6—1.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Myatt's drive. This ended the frame with three Indians on the sacks. Dave gets no credit for this catch in the records, however, as the rain, which halted play, wiped out the entire frame due to the fact that the Nationals did not have time to get their turn at the tee.

In addition to seeing their team beaten, Hodapp, Averill and Jamieson suffered otherwise, for the singles they made in the allen sixth do not count and if there is one thing a player dotes on it is hits.

this meant that the weather man was eliminated as an opponent.

Manush, with his two doubles, led the home attack, with Myer next, the result of a brace of singles. Cronin obtained but one hit, but this blow drove home two runs and tied him with Manush for "runs responsible for" honors. Cronin's catch of Hodapp's looper in the second featured afield, considering that Harris' effort came in an inning which, according to the box score, was not played.

GRIFFITH SEEKING HALE, OF BROWNS

has decided to stage the two games for one admission in the afternoon.

Trainer Mike Martin reported ill at the clubhouse yesterday and was sent home by the club physician, F. Riley (Bobo) Baxter acting as trainer for the day. According to rumors around the locker room, "Sir Mique" visited his farm in nearby Maryland yesterday morning, thought he discovered a field of fine mushrooms, only to discover from a sad experience that the plants in question were toadstools and toadstools are not to be eaten with impunity.

Sam Jones Hurls To Batters.

Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones, who has been out with injuries since soon after the start of the last Western trip, pitched to batters before yesterday's game and gave indication of approaching top form. He usually is effective against the Yankees and declares that he will be ready for this series next week.

Sam Rice was out in uniform yesterday. His bruised left knee is greatly improved and he may be back in the line-up today or tomorrow.

The Nats' Texas delegation, Art Shires, Fred Marberry, Lloyd Brown and Sam West, yesterday were luncheon guests of the Texas delegation in Congress, the affair being staged in the Speaker's dining room of the Capitol. Shires was the only speaker of the occasion, making "a durn good talk" on baseball in general, according ing to West.

E. S. Barnard, American League head, yesterday anonunced a revised list of double-header dates for teams in his circuit. Those wished on the Nats were July 9, at Boston; July 12, at Detroit; July 16 and 19, at Cleveland; August 2, at New York, and August 3, with the Red Sox at Washington.

Red Sox and Tigers Split Double Bill

Boston, June 24 (A.P.).—The Red Sox mixed a lot of poor baseball with a few samples of good play today and, divided a double header with the Detroit Tigers. Boston won the first game, 5 to 4, and the Tigers took the second in ten innings, 8 to 7.

The first game was a battle of home runs, with Bill Sweeney's pinch homer in the sixth providing the deciding runs. The Tigers had taken a 4-1 lead in the third on Uhle's homer with two on bases, which followed two hits and an error. Hod Lisenbee allowed only five hits.

Detroit scored two runs to Boston's one in the tenth inning of the second game after the Red Sox had tied the count for the third time in the eighth. Errors and walks played a large part in the Detroit scoring, as the Tigers made only six hits. A bad heave by Rhyne and Funk's sacrifice provided the winning counters. The first six runs were put on base by passes off George Smith.

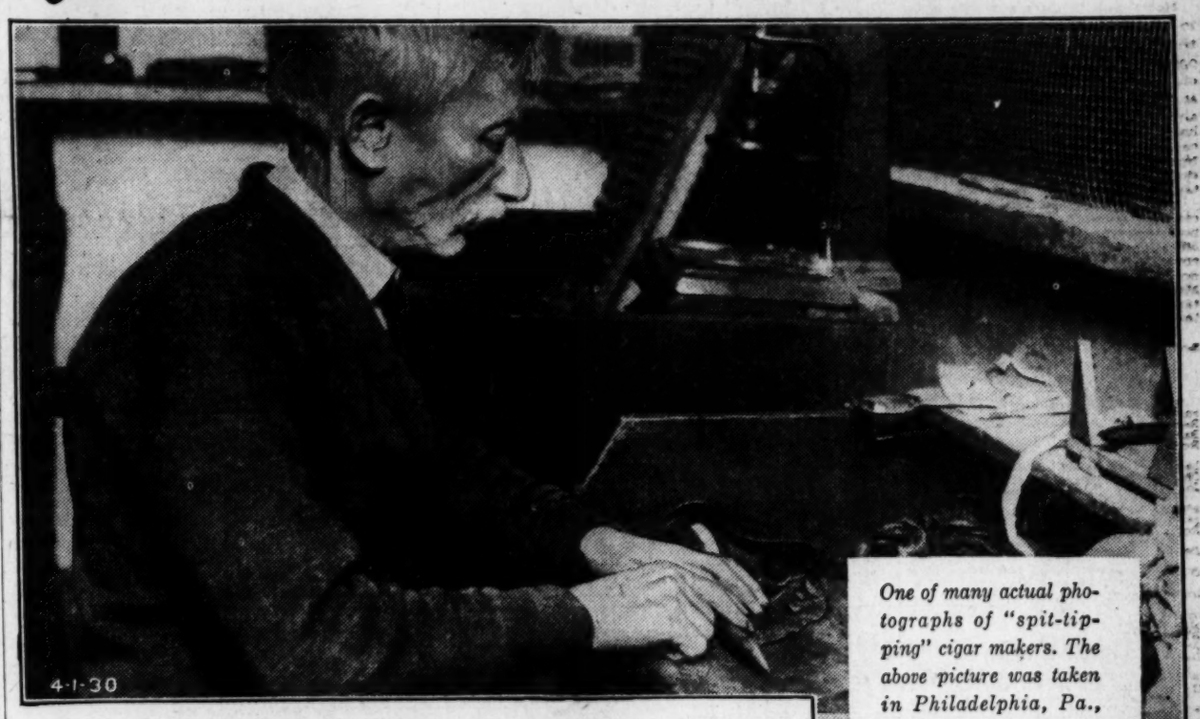
Spit is a horrid word, but it's worse if on the end of your cigar



One of many actual photographs of "spit-tipping" cigar makers. The above picture was taken in Philadelphia, Pa., April 1, 1930. An affidavit from the photographer is on file, showing that this workman used spit in making cigars.

Over 7,500 cigar factories are registered by the U. S. Government. Over 7,400 of these hand-roll cigars, producing 50 percent of the output. Every hand-rolled cigar—made by American Cigar Co. or anyone else—is subject to the possible danger of "spit-tipping." Certified Cremo is absolutely free from spit-tipping—No Cremo is made by hand.

Certified Cremo is a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. INDEX OF 90 STOCKS TOUCHES 1930 LOW

Yesterday's Advances More Than Wiped Out; 79 New Minimums.

DECLINE LED BY RAILS

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Unsettled by the weakness of wheat and investment rails, speculative sentiment turned decidedly bearish in the last half hour of today's Stock Market and prices broke throughout the entire list. Yesterday's advances were more than eliminated and the weighted index of 90 stocks went to a new low for the year based on closing quotations. Net losses ranged from 2 to 8 points in the so-called pivotal shares.

July wheat tumbled nearly 4 cents a bushel, selling just above 88 cents, another low for the past sixteen years. Other months were off to about the same extent and all closed at the bottom. Cotton was also heavy, although late covering held the net losses to 9 to 27 points.

Liquidation of the rails, many of which went to the lowest levels in several years, went forward persistently in the afternoon after publication of figures showing that net operating income of first twelve carriers to report for May had declined 27.9 per cent from the same month a year ago. This decline was less than the decreases in either March or April, but it lent capital to the bears who extended their activities to the utilities and rails. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel quickly equalled their year's lows, established last week, and American Can came within half a point of duplicating its previous minimum. Final prices were virtually at the bottom.

Steel Output Slightly Cut.

There was a bit of surprise in the weekly operating ratio of U. S. Steel. Standing at a fraction above 71 per cent compared with 72 per cent in the preceding week, the rate represented a smaller reduction than had been anticipated, especially since schedules have been cut. The favorable showing was accounted for in part by the extent of business for immediate delivery.

Independent producers were reported to be working at around 61 per cent of rated capacity against 64 per cent a week ago, while the average for the entire industry was estimated at 66 per cent, or about 2 per cent lower. At this time two years ago this average was 73 per cent.

Wall street read with interest a statement by Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the board of Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, who said there would be no resumption of business "in any comprehensive way" until commodity prices reached bottom. That, he added, would depend on world conditions and on America's rate of production.

Credit Rates Decline.

Credit rates moved toward still more favorable levels. Short term time money was reduced ¼ per cent to the lowest rates in years. Leading dealers cut bankers acceptances another eighth and call money went to 2 per cent for the first time in three months.

The weekly condition statement of the reporting Federal Reserve member banks suggested that recent liquidation in the stock market had not come primarily from the out-of-town banks, which had been reported to be reducing their security loans. This item rose $51,000,000 in the week ended June 18, during which period brokers' loans declined $211,000,000. One of the most significant items in the statement, however, was the gain of $111,000,000 in commercial borrowings, a rather striking upturn in view of recent tendencies in the other direction.

The late break in stocks carried U. S. Steel from 157½ to 152½ for a 4-point net loss. American Can fell from 118 to 110, losing 5¾ on the day. American Telephone was off 5¼ net, General Electric 3⅜, Atchison 8¼, Baltimore & Ohio 4½, New York Central 6⅜, Westinghouse 5⅛, Eastman Kodak 9½ and J. I. Case 18½. The day's new-lows totaled 79.

Most of the leading foreign exchanges were steady, although the Spanish peseta made a large decline.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—Reported northward spread of the 1930 wheat harvest into Nebraska gave a fresh jolt to the wheat market today, knocking prices down 4 cents a bushel. Predictions were current that a big movement of Nebraska wheat would soon develop, and fears were expressed that with no adequate outlet a material increase of the United States visible supply in the near future would result in elevator and farm congestion. Closing quotations were at the day's lowest level and were also under any records since 1914.

Wheat finished unsteady, 3⅜@4 cents a bushel below yesterday's close. Corn showed 1⅜@1⅝ cents net decline, with oats ⅛@½ cent down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Fading away of active buying power here characterized the wheat market today, rather than any unusual pressure to sell. Undermining confidence of would-be purchasers were indications that the marketing of newly harvested wheat in the Southwest is not being restrained to any notable extent by talk that farmers are holding their wheat. Meanwhile the wheat market here was being bearishly affected also by an indifferent response which the trade at Liverpool made to yesterday's price advances on this side of the Atlantic. Cheap offerings of United States wheat abroad were a reason assigned, but estimates were that North American export business today, 1,250,000 bushels, consisted not of United States wheat but nearly altogether of wheat grown in Canada.

Advices of further timely rains benefiting crops in Canada counted as an additional influence toward lower prices for wheat, and so likewise did word of uninterrupted favorable conditions for harvesting of domestic winter wheat and for growth progress in the United States spring-crop belt. There were also dispatches of hand telling of European import requirements having been lessened because harvest operations had started in Europe's early producing countries, and that actual arrivals of foreign wheat during the last week at the principal European continental ports have been 1,000,0000 bushels more than for the week previous. Another depressing factor was announcement that Canadian millers had reduced the price of bran to the lowest point ever known.

Corn, oats and rye went lower chiefly as a result of sympathy with wheat weakness. Rye as well as wheat dropped to new bottom prices.

Provisions advanced notwithstanding downturns both in the value of hogs and of grain as well.

FEW LEGAL CARRIER BONDS SCORE GAINS

U. S. Governments Advance Slightly in Generally Mixed Market.

LOWS FOR SUGAR ISSUES

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—A mixed trend dominated the listless trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today.

United States Governments provided the most encouraging feature, rising several thirty-seconds of a point under moderate accumulation. Government bonds are the first to reflect easier money rates, as they did today when call money dropped to 3 per cent. Time money was pared one-eighth of 1 per cent on shore maturities, and rates on bankers' acceptances were cut. In addition, the New York Clearing House member banks cut the rate on 30-day deposits to 1½ per cent, which was viewed as a potential influence on the diversion of funds to the bond market.

A few legal railroad bonds showed improvement, but an easier tone ruled the group. In contrast with the improvement shown by some issues, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Erie 5s of 1967 and Seaboard issues touched new lows for the year. Missouri Pacific 4s gained nearly a point, and New York Central 5s and Pennsylvania Gold 5s gained slightly.

After holding fairly steady during the early trading, convertibles experienced a sharp reaction in the afternoon, and the close showed Alleghany 5s of 1950, St. Paul 5s, International Telephone 4½s, and Rock Island 4½s at new lows for the year. Atchison 4½s lost 2⅞, the largest drop in the group, and Baltimore & Ohio 4½s and Chicago Northwestern 4¾s ended the day at the year's low level. Moving against the trend was the American Telephone 4½s, which gained 1½ points.

Sugar bonds sold at new low levels for the year. Manati 7½s dropped 10 points to 37, making a loss of 23 points in two days. Vertientes 7s lost 1 to establish a new 1930 low.

Moderate activity was displayed by foreign issues, with the usual leaders holding steady. German issues were easier. German 7s touched a new year's low and then rallied slightly. Some sharp drops occurred among less active issues. Nuremberg 6s lost 4½; Peru 2nd 6s, 3; Warsaw 7s, 5¾, and Holland-American Line 6s, 2. British 5½s and Belgium 6s gained ¼ of a point.

WOMAN IS AWARDED DAMAGES OF $2,500

Jury in Arlington County Gives That Amount to Dorothy McIntyre.

GAS FIRM IS DEFENDANT

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

After deliberating for more than three hours yesterday an Arlington County jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $2,500 in the case of Dorothy E. McIntyre against the Rosslyn Gas Co. for damages of $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been suffered when she stumbled over a stop cock box in Lacy street, Ballston.

It was brought out by Attorney Amos C. Crounse, attorney for the plaintiff, that she was returning to her automobile on the night of August 13, 1929, when she fell over the box which was in the parkway, resulting in serious injury to her back.

Attorneys for the defendant claimed that when the box was first set in it was placed even with the grade and that with automobiles driving over the parkways and with rains washing away the dirt the box was left in a position above the grade. When notified of the condition the company immediately lowered the box. The defendant was represented by Judge Harry R. Thomas, of Arlington County; Milton Lambert and R. T. Yeatman, of Washington, and James Randall Caton, jr., of Alexandria.

Christopher Garnett, attorney for John S. Barbour, chief of counsel for Arlington County in the recent annexation suit brought against the county by the City of Alexandria, appearing yesterday before Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy in Arlington, asked a change of venue in the trial of an $8,000 suit brought by Mr. Barbour against the board of supervisors for fees claimed due.

Judge McCarthy anounced that he would take the matter under advisement, but indicated that he thought the better plan would be to have a judge from another circuit sit here in the case.

Mr. Barbour is suing for $7,500 as the balance said to be due him in the annexation case, and $500 claimed as counsel fee in proceedings to determine whether the City of Alexandria or Arlington County owned the fire equipment in the Town of Potomac, a part of the annexed territory.

Following Mr. Garnett's motion, Capt. Crandal Mackey, appearing as counsel for the county board of supervisors, objected on the ground that no reason appeared as of record for any transfer, and that the right to have the case tried in Arlington County before a local jury should be enjoyed by the board and that interests of each individual juror are so infinitesimal that they would not be influenced in deciding the case.

The defense of the county is that the sum of $2,500 which has been paid Mr. Barbour was in full for his services, according to terms of an agreement made prior to opening the case.

Swanson Wants Dial Phones Back

Quick Action on Resolution to Make Use Optional Is Blocked.

Politically the two Virginia senators—Swanson and Glass—travel along like a pair of adoring twins, but when it comes to the dial telephone they split.

A little more than a month ago, Senator Glass introduced a resolution for the removal of the dial telephones from the Senate side of the Capitol, a resolution that now has been carried out.

Yesterday Senator Swanson introduced another resolution to authorize reinstatement of the dials in the offices of those senators who liked them. Among those who like them, he said, is himself. Immediate action on the resolution was blocked by Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, who voiced an objection just as Senator Glass was leaping to his feet.

Rum Cache Found Near County Jail

Prince Georges Police Hold Pair After Liquor Is Discovered.

Prince Georges County police, headed by Sheriff Charles S. Early, yesterday staged a raid on a building next door to the County Jail at Upper Marlboro and arrested two colored men on charges of possession of intoxicants.

Armed with a search warrant, the policemen searched the building again and again without result until finally they discovered a concealed cache in the back yard of the premises. A hole had been dug in the ground and walled in with wood. A wooden cover then was placed over the hole on which soil and sodding were placed so that there was no outward appearance to show the ground had been disturbed.

The police found 56 half gallons of alleged liquor, they reported, and further search revealed another vault where no liquor was found. James Sullivan and Philip Mason, both colored, were held on bond of $1,000 each for action of the county police court by Justice of the Peace H. W. Gore, of Upper Marlboro.

MEETING SUGGESTS NEW CHAMBER AIDS

FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL SET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 248, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

A special committee of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce met yesterday afternoon in the chamber's office at Fairfax to recommend the names of persons to be elected directors from the magisterial districts to the board of directors of the chamber. The election will take place at the July meeting of the chamber, which will be held at Annandale. One-third of the directors are elected each year. The nominating committee was composed of Herbert Williams of Providence district, chairman; J. W. Gaines of Falls Church district, J. W. Cox of Mount Vernon district, Herbert Haar of Lee district and John Rooney of Dranesville district.

The persons recommended by the committee yesterday were: Miss Ludema Sayre, Centerville district; Capt. Thurlow White, Falls Church district; Benjamin F. Nevitt, Lee district; Mrs. G. Ashley Money, Dranesville district; J. W. Cox, Mount Vernon district, and Leon L. Freeman, Providence district. Two directors at large were also nominated yesterday: Merton E. Church, of Falls Church, and Edmund H. Allen, of Newington.

Herbert Williams, chairman of a special committee appointed by Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and the county school board at their joint meeting last week to recommend a suitable site for a centrally located county vocational high school, announced yesterday that the special committee would hold a public hearing at the Fairfax Courthouse on Saturday, July 12, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. The members of this committee are: Herbert Williams and John T. DeBell, who represent the county school board; Kyle Davis and Mark Turner, who represent the county board of supervisors, and C. C. Carr, secretary of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, who represents the county at large.

Chairman Williams stated that this meeting will be held to afford the various communities an opportunity to present the sites they favor, to explain their advantages and to state what the community will contribute toward erecting the proposed school. He also stated that the chairman of the board of supervisors, W. F. P. Reid; the chairman of the county school board, Dr. F. M. Brooks, and divisional superintendent of schools, Wilbert T. Woodson, have been specially invited to attend the public meeting.

A special meeting of the Town Council of Vienna was held in the council room of the town hall at Vienna Monday night to discuss the possibility of having the vocational school established there. The meeting was attended by Mayor Edgar T. Bennett and the entire council, W. T. Woodson, school trustee; Williams, of Providence district; Harry V. Leigh, supervisor from Providence district, and Leon L. Freeman, delegate from Fairfax County to the Virginia Assembly.

Superintendent Woodson spoke of the need of a vocational school in the county located at some central place. He stated that in the present day it had become necessary to offer courses in high school that would fit the pupils for some particular kind of trade, in addition to the regular academic courses required for admittance to college. He advocated that the school should be financed by the means of a county levy and a building program based on a unit system, so that additional rooms may be added as funds become available.

It was pointed out at the meeting that Vienna had many advantages to offer for the location of such a school, inasmuch as it is the only town in the county served by two railroads and joined by hard surfaced roads to McLean, Fairfax and Oakton. The town has a large school building, with the largest grounds of any school in the county.

The council decided to call a mass meeting of the citizens of the town to be held in the town hall Saturday night. They will at this time formulate plans for the presentation of the town's advantages to the committee for locating the vocational school there. It is stated that a large number of sites were available in the town which will be offered to the county for school use at the meeting on July 12. The former school building at Vienna, which is across the road from the new building, has been sold, but it is stated that it could be repurchased at a small cost if needed.

The carnival of the Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department will open tomorrow evening on the lot west of the county jail on the Little River turnpike. The stands have been completed and are ready to open. This annual carnival conducted by the firemen, is the means of raising money to pay indebtedness on the fire-fighting equipment purchased by them for the use of the community. Funds to assist in the running expenses are also raised in this manner. The carnival will close Saturday night, at which time the other member companies of the Fairfax County Firemen's Association plan to attend in a body.

George B. Robey is general chairman of the carnival.

The Falls Church Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold a social meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. T. Fenwick at East Falls Church.

The Kenmore Council, Daughters of America, at Andrew Chapel, plan to organize a drill team at its meeting tomorrow night.

The Ladies Social Club, of the St. John's Catholic Church at El Nido will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alice Peyton, at Chesterbrook.

A meeting of the Sunday school and official boards of the Methodist Church at Oakton has been called by the Rev. Ralph Wott, pastor of the church, for tomorrow. This meeting was originally planned for next week, but will be held this week so as not to conflict with the Fourth of July celebrations of the members.

City's Heads Seek Right to Hire Men

Civic Center Technicians Without Salary Limit Requested.

Enactment of legislation giving them general authority to employ professional or technical services in the preparation of plans for the municipal center and its development was urged by the District Commissioners in a letter to the House District committee yesterday.

The proposed legislation would authorize employment for outside technical men without regard to the restrictions on salaries or other provisions of the classification act or the revised statutes.

"Existing and proposed legislation in appropriation acts gives the Commissioners authority to employ such outside architectural and other professional services as they have in immediate contemplation," the Commissioners said, "but does not grant general authority applicable to situations and needs that may, and probably will, arise in the future.

"The Commissioners feel that such general authority will prove to be almost essential in connection with the plans and specifications for the successive buildings in this group, and therefore favor enactment of this bill."

VIRGINIA RETAILERS OPEN CONFERENCE

Menace of Chain Stores Is Overrated, Says King in Charlottesville Talk.

SEES BETTER BUSINESS

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 24.—"I have never felt that chain stores constituted the menace to local retail merchants that some others regard them," said former State Senator Floyd W. King, in an address this morning at the opening session of the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Retail Merchants Association of Virginia. "I doubt if the chains have caused many local merchants to close shop who would not, in all probability, have had to close any how, he declared. It is quite true that they have been a powerful factor in weeding out the weaker and less progressive local merchants; on the other hand, they have been a source of real help in diffusing throughout the smaller communities a great educational influence for better, more modern and up-to-date merchandising."

Referring to the extreme depression which has marked all lines of industry since the disastrous slump of last fall, Mr. King pointed out what he considered favorable trends, but stated that the fact that business promises to begin a recovery in the near future should not be taken to mean immediate prosperity. The rise is likely to require considerable time, possibly until the middle of next year, he said.

Visiting delegates were welcomed by City Manager Henry A. Yancey and L. N. Graves, president of the local association. R. E. Knight, of Alexandria, made the response. In his annual report, President W. T. Wade, of the Clifton Forge group, recommended that the incoming legislative committee be requested to get in touch at once with the authorities of the furniture, pharmaceutical, jewelry and hardware associations, with the view of formulating some plan whereby the organizations may cordinate in legislative work.
